Jobless rate up in October

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate rose from 8.3 to 8.6 per cent of the labor force in October, reversing a four month decline, the government reported today.

The bleak job report following Thursday's announcement of a new spurt of inflation last month was a double blow to the Ford administration, which is certain to face new questions over its efforts to pull the economy from the worst recession since the 1930s.

In its report, the Labor Department said the number of unemployed in October increased by 230,000 to 8 million. The number of Americans with jobs stood at 85.4 million, about the same as in September.

The size of the nation's labor force increased, rising by about 250,000 to 93.4 million last month.

The increase in joblessness last month was the first since the unemployment rate reached its recession peak of 9.2 per cent last May. Since then, unemployment had dropped gradually as the nation began its recovery from the recession, falling to 8.6 per cent in June and dropping further to 8.4 per cent during the summer and finally to 8.3 per cent in September.

Labor Department officials attributed most of the increased jobless in October to persons re-entering the labor force, apparently in the hope of finding work as production in the nation's factories picked up.

Some economists have expressed concern over the strength of the economic recovery, particularly over fears that renewed inflation could abort new growth.

Inflation as measured by the wholesale price index jumped 1.8 per cent in October, the sharpest rise in a year, the government reported Thursday. At the White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the price news caused some concern among the President's economic advisers but that they wanted to "see evidence over a somewhat longer period of time" before reaching any new conclusions on the economy's direction.

Despite the new upturn in unemployment, not all of the job report was bad.

The government noted that the number of unemployed seeking jobs for 27 weeks or more — the so-called hard-core unemployed — declined, as did the average length of unemployment. A drop from 16.2 to 15.4 weeks in the average duration of unemployment last month was the first decline since the beginning of the year. The number of hardcore unemployed dropped by about 200,000 to nearly 1.4 million.

There was little change in the jobless rate among the major groups in the labor force.

Unemployment rates for adult men rose from 7 to 7.1 per cent; teenagers from 19.3 to 19.9 per cent, and adult women, up from 7.5 to 7.8 per cent.

The jobless rate for married men edged down from 5.3 to 5.2 per cent, but the rate for household heads, often a family's chief bread winner rose from 5.7 to 5.9 per cent.

Jobless rates for blacks and other minorities held steady in October at 14.2 per cent while the rate for whites, which had been gradually declining from its high of 8.2 per cent in the second quarter, rose from 7.6 to 7.9 per cent last month.

While most occupational and industry sectors show little or no unemployment change in October, the government reported a rise among clerical workers and persons in the finance and service industries — areas which traditionally provided a large proportion of the jobs held by women.

Total non-farm payrolls increased for the fourth straight month in October, rising by 220,000 to 77.5 million, the government said. Employment gains were found in 63 per cent of 172 industries surveyed by the Labor Department last month, compared with about 75 per cent in the previous two months.

In manufacturing, employment rose by 110,000, with nearly all of the increase in the nondurable goods sector. The apparel, food and textile industries posted the largest gains.

Jobs in the construction industry declined by another 30,000 last month after having stabilized somewhat since June. Jobs in construction, among the industries hardest hit by the recession, were off by about 730,000 from an all time peak in early 1974.

The nation's total employment, at 85.4 million, is about 1.5 million higher than it was last March during the recession, but still nearly a million below peak employment in September, 1974, before the economic decline set in.

Average hourly earnings last month rose two cents to $4.62, while average weekly earnings increased $1.18 to $167.24. Factory overtime declined slightly last month while the average work week for all production workers edged up one-tenth of an hour to 36.2 hours, the same as the August level.

David says surgery 'lot better than dying'

David went home today to California, Mo., with doctor's orders to stay away from friends, new marrow in his bones and a good chance to live to a ripe old age.

He left the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center, where his nonfunctioning bone marrow was replaced with four cups of the vital fluid extracted from his brother, Christopher, 16.

What was it like, to make a fearful trip in late July to an unknown city, not knowing if he would see home again?

"It was bad," a quiet David said over the telephone. "But for what it was, it wasn't that bad. In other words, it was a lot better than dying."

David's recovery from the nonmalignant disease aplastic anemia has been almost abnormal in its success, although it will take his body nearly two years to return to normal.

"So far he's doing very well," said Dr. Penny Koch, who has been in charge of the boy who turned 13 on Oct. 25.

"At present he certainly seems to have very few problems," continued Dr. Koch. "His blood counts—that's how we measure this—are almost all the way back to normal."

She said there would be some worry for awhile concerning rejection of the bone marrow graft, but that the main worry the next few months is the risk of infection. "Some of these things that offer protection from diseases, like antibodies, are not back to normal for 1½ to two years," said Dr. Koch.

For that reason, David will have to wear the mask over his face for some time, and won't be able to go back to school until the fall of 1976.

He said he is getting used to the mask, which he wore on a ferry boat outing Wednesday. The ferry ride was an adventure the boy had asked to go on before he returned to California.

Another adventure he had was in early September when President Ford visited the newly-named Fred Hutchinson Cancer Center, and stopped by to visit David and signed his medical chart.

Going home with David and his mother, Joyce, is a bill that earlier news accounts put at $20,000 to $25,000. Mrs. Anderson said she wasn't sure how much the total bill would come to, but that it would be at least partially defrayed by the generosity of contributors in Missouri and the Seattle area.

REA Express is bankrupt

The Associated Press reported today that REA Express, the nation's largest surface carrier, will go out of business in a week to 10 days, but a spokesman for the Sikeston office of the firm said this morning he had heard nothing official and did not know how long his office would remain open.

REA Express has been judged bankrupt and the business will be liquidated, according to a company spokesman in New York.

Only two people are employed at the Sikeston office, but the firm employes 8,000 people nationwide.

The decision to liquidate the business was reached Thursday in federal bankruptcy court in New York. The company has been operating under Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy laws since Feb. 18.

"We will deliver all the freight that is in the system at this time," spokesman for the firm in New York said, "And then they will sell everything."

When it filed for reorganization in February, the company made various cutbacks that included holding back about 10 per cent of the weekly pay of its employes. At the time, employes were told they would get the money after the company got back on its feet.

REA Express operates 232 terminals in the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico.

Archaeology group tours Lilbourn site

Bill Markwort, professor of anthropology at University of Missouri-Columbia, stressed the importance of Missouri archaeological research during a luncheon Thursday at the Ramada Inn, Highway 62 East.

The luncheon gave University of Missouri alumni and members of the Southeast Missouri Archaeological Society an opportunity to hear Dr. Carl Chapman, archaeologist in charge of the university's excavation at the Lilbourn Prehistoric Indian Site, as well as university president Dr. C. Brice Ratchford and Board of Curators president John Hall Dalton of Kennett, who both praised Dr. Chapman's work.

Earlier in the day, a group toured the Lilbourn site, where Dr. Chapman showed them his progress in unearthing evidence of a large fortified village which was occupied by the Mississippian Indians from about 1090 to 1450 A.D.

The excavation work, which began in 1969 with contributions from the National Endowment for the Humanities and individuals from the New Madrid-Lilbourn area, may be near an end unless additonal sources of funding can be found.

Already, Dr. Chapman and his associates have found out much about Southeast Missouri's early inhabitants who were largely agrarian, may have used primitive solar observatories and traded with

Court schedules hearings

BENTON — Ron Yersak of Malden, planning director of the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission, told the Scott County Court Thursday that preapplications for community development funds are now being accepted by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Yersak said each governmental unit must hold two public hearings before submitting preapplications for funds for the next fiscal year, which must be submitted before Dec. 15.

The County Court then set a public hearing for 7 p.m. Nov. 24 at the courthouse to discuss community development needs.

Another hearing will be held the same evening for the newly appointed County Planning and Zoning Commission. Yersak and Henry Galetschky, of Columbia, a planner for the University of Missouri Extension Service, will be present to explain the duties of the commission.

East Prairie revises DWI ordinance

EAST PRAIRIE — Application for discretionary funds, adoption of a revised driving while intoxicated ordinance and objection to a planning and zoning ordinance pertaining to mobile homes were included on the agenda of Thursday night's City Council meeting.

City Manager Frank Carter announced a public hearing would be held at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 21 in the council chambers for discussion of the city's application to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for discretionary funds. A second public hearing will be held 15 days later.

Applications must be made by Dec. 18 and the maximum amount which could be funded is $400,000, Carter said. The public hearings are for citizen participation in discussing how the money, should it be granted, is to be used. If approved for the first year, Carter said the city will then be eligible for three additional years.

Mrs. James Smith voiced objection to a section of the planning and zoning ordinance which prohibits her from renting residential property for mobile home use.

Under the ordinance mobile homes are restricted to trailer parks and when a residential lot is vacated by trailer it cannot be re-rented for trailer space. This does not apply to owner-occupied mobile homes.

Mrs. Smith said she has owned the property for 17 years, long before the ordinance was adopted in 1972, and that during this time it has only been used as trailer space, giving her "grandfather rights" to continue using the lot for rental purposes.

She was referred to the planning and zoning commission and told if she was not satisfied with their ruling she could appeal to the council.

A revised city ordinance for driving while intoxicated was adopted to conform with state statutes by a three to two vote margin.

Under the revision, a first offense is punishable by fine of not less than $50 or a jail sentence of three months or both. A second offense within a three-year period will bring a mandatory jail sentence of not less than seven days ormore than six months. The third offense in the three year period will bring a sentence of not less than 45 days or more than six months. No fines will be assessed on second and third offenses. On the second and third offense, 12 points can be assessed on driver's license, which brings an automatic revocation.

HELP THE LITTLE FELLOW

The propaganda line out of Washington is that Members of Congress are eager to "help the little fellow." In actual fact, all too often one can point to examples which indicate that the attitude of some Congressmen toward "the little fellow" is to give him a good crack across the knuckles.

Such is the case of the Postal Service Subcommittee headed by Chairman James B. Hanley of New York, which recently ruled that all coin-operated photocopy machines must be removed from every Post Office lobby in the land by January 1st, 1976. Unless someone sees the way clear to reverse the ruling, many low-volume, self-service consumers — the elderly, low and middle income wage earners, small businessmen, inner-city residents and small town folks alike — will be deprived of a convenient service they have become accustomed to using.

Big business doesn't have to worry. They can buy or lease their own photocopy machines. The little fellow who goes to the post office to buy his stamps and mail his income tax returns, Social Security and Medicare-Medicaid claims, old age assistance, alien registration, legal papers, and so forth is the one who benefits most by having available the low-cost copy service in a convenient location.

What makes the Hanley committee ruling even more non-sensical is the fact that the photocopy machines are installed in the post office lobbies at no cost to the taxpayer; the machines are not leased or rented by the government, so there is no fixed commitment or financial investment; all the costs of operation and maintenance are borne by the vendor, and not the Postal Service; the individuals or companies who provide the equipment pay local sales taxes, personal property taxes, income taxes, and, as required, vending licenses or permits; hence, all revenue accruing to the Postal Service is pure profit.

How about it, Congressman Hanley? Will you reconsider the situation in this light, and really give the little fellow a break?

While wage earners are painfully aware of the shrinking value of their dollar today, the Bureau of Labor statistics reports more evidence that household head income gains over recent years were mostly illusory.

Inflation and higher taxes nullified the yearly gains in gross earnings of household heads working in production or non-supervisory jobs as of 1973. Although their purchasing power did rise over a ten year period, inflation eroded their average annual increases in gross earnings by 65 to 80 per cent.

The median after-tax earnings of all household heads increased from 1963 to 1973 by $592, in terms of 1967 dollars, or from $4,782 to $5,374.

FEDERAL REVENUE SHARING IS TAXPAYERS' NIGHTMARE

It is said that when Congress passed revenue sharing it truly took leave of its senses, and here in Atchison county we have an example of its use that taxpayers won't forget.

In 1972 Americans were paying well in excess of $20 billion annually just to pay the interest on the federal debt, which was even then approaching $500 billion. But that year Congress, blissfully oblivious to this financial mess, decided to give away $30.2 billion over five years to the states and localities.

"Where in the hell do we get the money to pay for it?" asked Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D.-Wis.) at the time of its passage. Nelson, who is no slacker when it comes to voting for government spending programs, called it "fiscally irresponsible." And he added, "Those who spend the money ought to have the responsibility of raising the taxes."

Another Senate liberal, Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, also opposed revenue sharing and still opposes it.

In an interview, Mansfield expressed particular concern "about some of the uses the money is being put to, building bridle paths, and the like--a lot of things which I think are questionable. This is given out with a lavish hand. I'd rather see the money used to decrease the national debt."

Even Sen. Edmund Muskie (D.-Maine), one of the original promoters of revenue sharing, now concedes that one of the chief problems is that it gives money "to more than 38,000 jurisdictions, some of which have neither demonstrated a need nor provided a use for it."

Revenue sharing represents one big copout for state and local officials who have spent their governments into the red but fear the political consequences of either raising taxes or telling their constituents that cutbacks are needed. If the federal government can bail them out, they're home scotfree.

Congress caved in to the political demands of the cities and states--particularly the large urban giants--and agreed to do what the states and localities would not: borrow the additional money at high interest rates and, in effect, pay the ransom under dire threats of political retribution.

It was in 1972 when Congress embarked on its fiscally disastrous five-year, $30.2 billion escapade. But as of the beginning of fiscal 1975 almost $16 billion in federal funds could have been saved if Congress had so resolved through the appropriate legislation to permanently suspend the entire program.

Under the remaining program, $6.2 billion was to be distributed in fiscal 1975, $6.35 billion in fiscal 1976, and $3.3 billion for the first six months of fiscal 1977.

Hearings are being held on legislation to extend revenue sharing beyond fiscal 1977. Some are suggesting that it be made a permanent program. But with Congress' new budget-control committees ostensibly searching about for ways to cut billions of dollars--although their budget ceilings are higher than the Administration's--the remaining billions of revenue sharing would be a good place to start. It would result in no significant loss in jobs, affect no industries, but would reduce the mounting federal deficit by huge sums.

State and local bureaucrats would no doubt howl at the thought of losing this new pipeline to Washington's coffers, but the American taxpayers would heave a sigh of relief. If the states and localities so desperately need additional revenue, they can surely raise it on their own far more cheaply than the federal government. Congress should have the courage to honestly declare, "There is nothing to share. Our Treasury is in debt."

Yet even the spenders who now control the Capitol are not immune to public pressure. Given a massive outpouring of public reaction against this and other programs, votes can be turned against them.

THE NEW-OLD JOURNALISM

Today there is something called The New Journalism.

Actually, it's the old journalism.

What's happening today is that some young reporter believe their opinion, their conclusions about a story, shouldbe the subject they write about. That, in contrast to reporting the facts as objectively and clearly as possible and with as little of the writer's opinion as possible.

These young reporters call their "thing," The New Journalism.

They're wrong. They're wrong on two important scores.

The first is that reporting their opinion is more important than reporting the facts. It isn't.

The reason is this:

Our form of government — which is to say the way we live together — is based on the belief that a people can govern themselves. They don't need a dictator. Or a king. They can govern themselves.

However, to do it they need to know the facts. From the facts they can form their own conclusions, make their own opinions, reach their own judgments.

Our way of living together — the form of government under which we rule ourselves — depends on the ability of the voters to get the facts they need to think for themselves.

So supplying the facts as accurately, as objectively as a professional newsman can, is a high calling with tremendous responsibility.

It is far more vital than any reporter or editor expressing his opinion.

Next, The New Journalism isn't new.

All it is, is personal journalism— the same old, button-shoed, chin-whiskered reporting of the days of yellow journalism. Almost all newspapers in those days were the personal opinion of the writer. They weren't really NEWpapers. They were editorials (editorial are opinion; news is a report as clear and clean of opinion as possible).

So today's young reporters who believe they have discovered something new in expressing their opinion ins news stories are merely short of knowledge about journalism's past ... Just as they are also short in paying proper respect to the importance of reporting the facts upon which our people base their judgments.

GOOD NEWS FOR ALL

The rich black soil of America's farmlands produced a harvest in 1973 the likes of which has never been seen before--a healthy sign for the economy and a blessing for the farmer, who is now realizing some of the highest prices in U.S. history.

Since economic stability ultimately hinges upon the success of our agricultural industry, the implications of this situation are far-reaching. One farmer explains it this way, "....if the farmers have it good, then the nation is going to have it good...." He has a point. All things considered, Americans have never experienced such prosperity as now. True, there have been occasional, temporary food shortages, and inflation persistently nips at the heels of the consumer. But our stores are still brimming with well-stocked shelves; and, though the percentage may rise, the average American family devoted only about 15.6 percent of its disposable income for food in 1973.

"As "Time" magazine sees it, "...the improvement in the farmer's lot will probably last for many years. Prospects are strong that world demand for food will continue to grow rapidly, auguring a good return for farmers....Simultaneously, farm output will rise because the government, in a historic and long-overdue policy shift, will no longer pay farmers to hold down production." This is, indeed, good news for our international balance of trade, not to mention the total world economy which leans so heavily upon U.S. agriculture.

Even an industrialized society like the U.S. must acknowledge the significant role free market agriculture plays in maintenance of "the good life." The farm community may have shrunk over the years, but its importance has not.

EVEN PRESIDENT NO MATCH FOR BUREAUCRATS

For all the talk about "the imperial presidency" and the abuse of executive power, the fact of the matter is that a president is to a startling degree at the mercy not only of Congress but of a horde of invisible bureaucrats who are virutally immune to executive discipline.

So says university professor and columnist John P. Roche, who bases the statement on his experience as a speech writer and advisor to Lyndon B. Johnson.

Harry Truman was right when he said "the buck stops here." That is, it is the president's obligation to settle policy. From inside, however, says Roche, "you rapidly learn that the real problem is to get important decisions where they belong: on the desk in the Oval Office."

Stopping the buck at the top "does not call for displays of courage as much as it does for an efficient espionage apparatus to guarantee that key decisions are not being made by invisible bureaucrats, to make sure the buck does not stop someplace else."

The armor of this bureaucracy is civil service tenure, provided by Congress to about 98 per cent of the administrative establishment and originally considered a great reform designed to eliminate the spoils system. Roche discovered that he was one of only about 700 members of the thousands in the Johnson administration whom the President could summarily fire.

The real battle in Washington, he claims, is not between the administration and Congress. "It is between the president and a secret alliance of the legislature and the bureaucracy, who share the common objective of cutting the president down."

It is almost impossible to exaggerate the ingenuity displayed by the bureaucracy in stonewalling a presidential policy, he says. Take the example of the supply of deadly poisons retained by the CIA in defiance of a presidential order.

How could the president have found out about it? The CIA director didn't tell him. By getting one of the invisible men down about five layers to squeal on another?

Actually, says Roche, most episodes of this sort surface because of a personal grudge leading to an anonymous tip to a congressman or journalist.

Watergate, he suggests, while it was an absurd, criminal extreme, was part of a process that goes back to World War II in which presidents have been driven to improvise techniques for control of the administration.

Ironically, in his effort to create the power the textbooks say he had, Richard Nixon set in motion a train of events leading to congressional predominance unmatched in history.

The wasted $50 million cash-out item still is in the bankrupt annual budget.

Mind you the tragic illiterates never threatened to riot. City Hall was just buying some sociological -- and political -- insurance. There are scores of such ripoffs, all still in the budget, skyrocketing the squandered millions into a billion here and thre.

For example, there are three, oft-terrorized, frequently "hostaged" city hospitals here which can be closed and not be missed. Everybody admits that. Savings would be $9 million annually.

There are hospital rackets and mismanagement costing this city tens of millions a year. And drug prescription abuse in public hospitals costing $1.5 million a year.

And in the city's 18 municipal hospitals the doctors' patient charting and charging system is so confused, New York actually loses $30 million annually. Up and up and up it goes -- drowned out by official cries for help. Yet these abuses could be wiped out overnight.

But there's a simpler, swifter way to save the city. No politician has dared breathe it: this city has several budgets. No matter how you scramble them, the total payroll costs, including transit, come to $7.5 billion a year. Why not merely cut all pay right across the board?

A 10 per cent wage trim would save $750 million annually. That would hardly make up for a massive indolence and productivity ooze, much of it politically protected. But it would give the city much of what it needs to carry it over -- without defaulting.

And no one need be fired.

Wouldn't it be far better for the city's 263,000 employes to take home a few dollars less than to take home nothing -- or to go on welfare?

And talking about welfare: another one billion dollars could be saved by the city if it withheld its share of this public assistance, income maintenance, cash payouts and administrative costs. Welfare clients would still receive 75 per cent of their current income -- regularly paid by the federal government (50 per cent) and the state (25 per cent).

President Ford was wrong when he asserted that one out of every 10 clients is ineligible. The average ripoff comes to well over 11 per cent. That makes it more than 125,000 who are stealing hundreds of millions of dollars a year.

Well, along comes Police Benevolent Assn. president Ken (Stink City) McFeeley. He shouts that welfare cuts would provoke rioting. And that he would tell his 23,000 cops not to go out into the streets to maintain order and get clobbered. That sounds to me like misplaced militancy, or incitement to desertion or hysterical scare strategy. Since when is sworn duty a sometime thing?

Also this reflects a new-found police elitism. What inspired the police union chief to believe the actual poor are less loyal than cops who constantly threaten job action? And who have manhandled their own leaders when the latter attempted reasonable city negotiations not too long ago.

Further, the 25 per cent cut in welfare would leave a vacuum which could be filled with increased food stamp grants. This should be easy. Just take the food stamps from the ripoff operators. Authentic reports have it that some nine million ineligible persons are stealing (officially receiving) food stamps to which they're obviously not entitled. And that the ripoff cost runs between $500 and $1 billion annually. So the city's welfare clients can be fed, can't they, by taking it from the food stamp thieves. So no one gets hurt but the chiselers.

Thus at least $1.750 billion can be saved in one year -- as can considerable hysteria.

And there's routine municipal employment annual attrition. How much? No one really knows. Who counts? But the estimate runs between 5 and 10 per cent. It's much higher. Especially when a little arithmetic is done on the huge police department and the gargantuan school system (79,000 teachers at the latest full count on July 1, 1973).

Since the city employe's yearly average pay runs $12,000 and there are additional hiring costs to the personnel division, attrition saves at least $315 million annually. Scores of millions more are paid out for consultant fees on assignments which could be handled by the city's own skilled personnel.

None of this need be permanent. Say for a year or two. The 10 per cent pay cut could be covered by script payable in five years. But all this would be the easy way. So would be dipping into the city and state's $15 billion worth of civil service pension funds -- still growing swiftly.

There's no reason for New York City's defaulting -- except the greed of many of the city's entrenched civil servants. Sure the federal government should help -- but not until the city's army of employes prove they're willing to help themselves -- and the welfare clients help wipe out welfare rackets.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON--The FBI has always required its agents to toe the line. The standards are strict, the rules rigid. Agents have been disciplined for accepting a football ticket or a free meal.

Yet top FBI officials haven't always obeyed the regulations that they have imposed on the rank and file.

The late J. Edgar Hoover accepted race-track vacations from Texas tycoon Clint Murchison and used FBI agents to write books for him. His successor, L. Patrick Gray III, took to flying about the country in Air Force planes and staying at fancy hotels.

Now we have learned that the present FBI director, Clarence Kelley, was wined, dined and hosted for a weekend at New York City's posh Waldorf Astoria by the insurance company that underwrites health insurance for FBI employes.

Not only Kelley but two of his deputies, Thomas Jenkins and Thomas Feeney, got the full treatment from Prudential Insurance Company. Their wives were also guests of the company.

Aside from the Waldorf incident, Kelley has kept himself clean. An associate said this was the only conflict of interest that has ever been raised about Kelley.

Although FBI employes aren't supposed to accept such expensive favors from firms with which they do business, the FBI insurance program theoretically is independent of the FBI. The agents run it, however, with Feeney as president and Jenkins a board member.

In explaining the Kelley junket, the FBI said: The primary purpose of the trip was for Prudential executives...to meet with Mr. Kelley and key members of the (health insurance program). During this meeting, items of mutual interest...were discussed."

The FBI said Prudential didn't pay travel expenses for the FBI party, only hotel and related bills. Kelley's transportation costs were picked up by the FBI because he consulted with his New York office head during the visit.

Far more flagrant were the abuses of that stern old disciplinarian, J. Edgar Hoover and his sidekick, Clyde Tolson. Here are a few examples we have obtained from sworn statements and old-time FBI sources:

--Hoover and Tolson used an FBI inspector, Albert Gunsser, to fill out their tax forms and sometimes to advise them on their oil investments in Texas, Louisiana and Kansas. Gunsser must have been an investment genius. For Tolson left an estate approaching $750,000, much of it bequeathed to him by Hoover.

--At one time, Tolson was drawing $4,000 a month from oil investments. After he retired in 1972, recalls former FBI bigwig John Mohr, "people in the oil business would call (Tolson) on the phone and tell him, 'We've got a good one going here, do you want to get in on it, Clyde?' And I guess he would get in on it."

--Despite his wealth, the aged Tolson demaned $4,500 from the J. Edgar Hoover Foundation for some books Hoover had willed him. When the foundation's director complained bitterly, Tolson retorted: "Pay the $4,500 or forget it."

--When Tolson's mother was sick, he didn't hire nurses with his own money but assigned a special agent "who spent a great deal of time taking care of Clyde's mother." The agent's wife also helped with the nursing.

--Tolson excluded from his will a nephew whom he had installed as an FBI agent. The nephew upset Tolson by running off with a woman from a local police department, Mohr alleged. Yet Tolson used an artifice, himself, to stay at the FBI long after his health had failed.

--A bachelor, Tolson dated a model in New York City "a long time ago" and frequented race tracks where he had a "special arrangement," Mohr said.

--Tolson had his erstwhile aide, Mohr, draw up a series of wills and codicils. Mohr wrote himself in for a $26,000 legacy plus perhaps an equal amount in executor's fees. For a lawyer to write himself into a client's will is a breach of legal ethics. Mohr explained that he was acting for Tolson as a friend, not as his lawyer, and that Tolson specifically ordered him to write himself into the will.

Mohr denied emphatically, meanwhile, that he took the mysterious "Hoover papers" out of the late FBI chief's old house where they reportedly had been stored. All he removed, said Mohr, were "several boxes of spoiled wind," a half-dozen boxes of trash and "15 or 20 jars of honey" which he said were "thrown out."

He also took some other innocent items, he said, including some "loose papers" which Mohr said he turned over to his attorney for safekeeping.

PURINA POSTSCRIPT--In an earlier column, we reported that the Humane Society of the United States found cats used by Purina for its commercials were from a facility where mistreatment of animals occurred.

We can now report that Purina is no longer using the facility and has taken measures to make sure its cats are as well cared for as they look on TV. The firm avows that it has "initiated periodical unannounced inspections of all facilities" used for its TV and other ads, a practice that other firms might well follow to insure humane care of TV animals.

SMTS group meets Nov. 19

MALDEN — Southeast Missouri Transportation System members will meet at 11:30 a.m. Nov. 19 in the Malden Community Building for a potluck luncheon.

Poster child

The 1976 March of Dimes State Poster Child, Kathryn Keller of St. Louis, was introduced to Mrs. Bill Wellborn of Sikeston, during a state orientation meeting in Columbia recently. Mrs. Wellborn, chairwoman for the 1976 Mothers' March in Sikeston, attended the meeting with other volunteers from the SeMo and Bootheel chapters.

Other officers are Emma Hulshof, vice president; Dora Ward, secretary; Mildred Young, assistant secretary; and Kathleen Corgan, treasurer.

The club is open to persons 55 years old and above in the Portageville area. Meetings will be held from 1:30 to 4 p.m. each Wednesday.

The Parma Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation Willing Workers Club attended the meeting and displayed their craft work. Lottie Ellerbrook, president of the Parma group, presented the new Golden Years Club a check to help purchase craft supplies.

Representatives of other agencies at the meeting were Mrs. Christine Jones, director of the Retired Seniors Volunteer Program at Caruthersville; Z. D. Hargraves of Malden, a volunteer worker for the Southeast Missouri Transportation Center; and Cecelia Ackerman and Leonard Thomas, Volunteers in Service to America workers in the Portageville area.

March of Dimes organization outlines coming objectives

COLUMBIA—Volunteers from the SeMo and Bootheel chapters of the March of Dimes attended a state volunteer meeting here Oct. 23-24. Among other subjects, delegates heard about recent medical advances to help insure that babies are born healthier.

The main purpose was to outline what initiatives the voluntary health organization will take in the coming year. Plans for the March of Dimes annual January fund drive were discussed, and award presentations were presented for distinguished volunteer service.

The goal of the National Foundation March of Dimes is the prevention of birth defects, the nation's number one child health problem. One of the foundation's major aims is to improve the outcome of pregnancy--that is, prevent miscarriages and stillbirths and ensure that the baby is born healthy and the mother survives in good health.

March of Dimes supported researchers study ways to further these goals. Contributions to the March of Dimes also go to improve prenatal and perinatal care, genetic counseling for people with a history of birth defects and educational efforts for pregnant women and parents-to-be.

Additional volunteers are needed by the March of Dimes to make these goals possible. Persons interested in serving may call telephone number 264-2409 for further information on how you can help in the fight against birth defects.

Among those attending the state meeting were: Mrs. Beth Filer of Marble Hill, Mrs. Don Sauer of Perryville, Mrs. Bill Wellborn of Sikeston and Tom Stecher of Cape Girardeau, Mothers' March chairwomen; Mrs. Charles Sullins of Sikeston, campaign director; Karen Borneman and Bill O'Connors of Delta walkathon committee; and Louise Miller of Scott City, executive director of the SeMo and Bootheel chapters.

Bernie mayor clarifies action

BERNIE — The purpose of the recently named cemetery board of directors is to oversee city expenditures involving the Bernie Cemetery, according to Mayor R. B Woods.

The cemetery is owned by the Bernie Cemetery Association, and the city has no plans to take over the cemetery, Woods said.

He said some people thought the city's action meant the city would assume control of the cemetery, which is not the case at all.

When applied to animals, the word Jack means inferior, small or male.

Soybeans are state's number one cash crop

By MARY CIRIELLO
Consumer consultant

"Up until 40 years ago soybeans were harvested by hand. People threw the soybean stalks on a meshed wire that was stretched over the mule-drawn wagon bed. Then they beat the stalks until the bens fell through," says Jack Tipton, veteran soybean producer from southeast Missouri's bootheel, where 30 per cent of the state's 100,000,000 bushels of soybeans are grown annually.

He says people used to harvest only a couple acres a year; just enough to use forthe next year's planting. "In the early days of the industry," he explains, "soybeans were grown mainly for conservation purposes; for the nitrogen they put into the soil so other crops would thrive."

The early days of the soybean industry, however, are not so early by other crop's standards. Although the first recorded history of soybeans dates to 2000 B.C. in the Orient, soybeans were not introduced in the United States until 1804.

In Missouri soybeans emerged from a minor crop in 1940 to the state's number one cash crop by 1973 and today are grown on more cultivated acres than any other crop. In 1974, the 4.5 million acres of soybeans produced a crop valued at 750 million dollars.

Tipton, president of the Missouri Soybean Association, attributes the soybean industry's rapid growth to modern equipment, technology and soybean's versatility in filling nutritional needs in domestic and especially world markets. Missouri ranks fifth nationally in soybean exports.

Soybeans come closest of any vegetable to matching meat's quality and quantity of amino acids, the building blocks of protein. Containing little fat and no cholesterol, one-half cup cooked mature soybeans provide the iron equivalent of three eggs, the calcium equivalent of about one-half cup of milk and almost the protein equivalentof two ounces of meat.

Along with soy flour and grits, food technologists have developed textured soy proteins, concentrates and islotes. All are valuable as extenders for ground and processed meat products.

Soy derivatives are not only being used as ingredients but many leading food companies now are using a process which dissolves soy protein into filaments, coagulates the filaments and creates fibers called "tow" which are almost without color or taste. The two fibers are spun like textile fibers into foods which look and taste like almost any food: Scallops, chicken, pecans, pork, beef and bacon strips which have almost no shrinkage, unlike bacon from pork.

Because of the economic and nutritional value of soybeans, the development of soybean based food products has been lucrative to food manufacturers. It holds much promise for the future. Missouri is the fourth largest producer of soybeans in the United States but unfortunately little if any food processing is done to the beans before they leave the state. There is hope that there will be more soybean processing within the state which would provide a boon to the economy.

Add a boon to the nutritional content of your diet and enjoy some of the newest foods on the market by trying some of the soy-based foods on the market.

Forms of soy oil include margarine which is generally higher in polyunsaturated fats than fat from animal sources. Forms of soy protein available include meat analogs such as sausage; bacon; packaged ground beef-soy protein mixture which is a combination of 75 per cent ground beef and 25 per cent soy protein mixed together; dehydrated soy protein to mix with ground beef; and packaged dehydrated soy protein to mix with diced or chipped chicken, ham, tuna or other meats.

According to the Food Protein Council, a ground beef-soy protein mixture results in juicier pattie and loaves, frequently has better flavor than those made from meat alone because texturized soy protein absorbs meat juices. They also report that the ground beef-soy protein mixture usually contains less fat and may be less expensive than regular ground beef.

Fortify your favorite meatball, taco or meat loaf recipes by removing ½ cup (four ounces) of each pound of ground beef your recipe calls for and substitute ½ cup reconstituted texturized vegetable protein (TVP) granules.

Delta Center offers sample questions from CLEP exams

PORTAGEVILLE — Sample questions for four of the college level examinations in medical technology are available for the small sum of the cost of xeroxed copies. Subjects in which these questions are available are in the fields of clinical chemistry, hematology, immunohematology (blood banking) and microbiology.

The examinations in the first three subjects mentioned are designed specifically to measure knowledge normally gained in courses offered during the clinical portion of four-year medical technology programs. The examination in microbiology is designed primarily to measure the material normally found in introductory college-level microbiology; however, this test is related to medical technology in that students in the field take introductory microbiology as a prerequisite for more advanced work. More detailed content descriptions of each examination follow. These will help you to determine the appropriateness of each test for your students.

Since courses with the same four titles are offered in two-year as well as four-year medical laboratory training programs, all four examinations are expected to be useful for both programs. In accordance with college board policy for all CLEP examinations, individual institutions make their own decisions about how they will use and interpret test scores.

Although there is wide variation in the difficulty of individual questions on the examinations, most are intended to be only moderately difficult. It is not expected that people taking the test will be able to answer every question.

The examinations were prepared to serve people who may have learned in a variety of ways. For instance, people trained as medical corpsmen in the armed services may well have mastered the material equivalent to one of more of these academic courses. Many people who work in medical laboratories possess considerable knowledge, gathered through experience, which has gone unrecognized. Although these peopel may well have excellent command of the principles, concepts and facts to move ahead in the field of medical technology, they have had little opportunity to obtain academic credit for their knowledge.

Copies of the sample questions may be obtained at the University of Missouri Delta Center, Portageville, by contacting Kathryn Kinnard, at telephone number, 379-5431.

Warm, humid bathrooms are the perfect breeding ground for mold, mildew and odors, says Lynn Raasch, consumer information specialist for a major wax company. To win the battle against them, she suggests a nongritty spray such as bathroom cleaner. It will clean all bathroom surfaces, replacing mold and mildew with a sparkling shine.

Aged parents want to kick son out

Dear Ann Landers: Our 27-year-old son is a drug addict. He lives at home and refuses to work. The rugs and furniture are full of cigaret holes and his father and I are afraid he'll burn the house down one of these nights -- us with it.

This boy has been on and off methadone for several months and can't remember his own name. The doctors have given him prescriptions for Valium plus a lot of other stuff. The expense is breaking us. Our son has money on his person but keeps asking us to pay for everything.

My husband is sick and wants to retire. Where are the laws in the country anyway? Why must aged parents be forced to keep a son who is in such terrible shape and makes their life a living hell? Lord knows we deserve some peace in our old age. How can we get it? -- Helpless And Miserable

Dear Friends: Let's start with the laws in this country. Nowhere does it say parents must keep a 27-year-old son in their home. You could have kicked him out legally six years ago. Maybe that's where you made your first mistake.

There are many drug abuse clinics in the U.S. and Canada and your son should be in one of them. I urge you to call the County Mental Health Society and ask for specific instructions. You are only as "Helpless" as you want to be.

Dear Ann Landers: Bravo for "It's Over Robert Redford." She's got my vote! It's high time the tables were turned. Usually it's the woman who pays for having an affair with a married man. Almost always SHE gets tossed aside after he's had his fling.

My story is a lulu. Against my better judgment, I kept company with a married man whose wife was an invalid. He kept telling me he had to stay with her because he'd feel like a heel leaving a handicapped woman. Every time we were together he swore he loved me madly. I admit I fell for him like a ton of coal. He was one of the most attractive men I'd ever met in all my life.

Six months ago his wife passed away suddenly, from, of all things, the flu! Though he repeatedly declared his undying love for me, his phone calls became fewer and his "out of town" business trips became more frequent. I telephoned his home early one evening to cancel a date. To my utter surprise I learned that the female who answered his phone had been living with him for several months. He "loved" her, too, and SHE also thought he was "out of town." (Obviously he had a third dame in the woodwork.)

I did not cancel my date but went t o his home instead. Number Two and I put his blankets on sideways and poured salt between the sheets. We hung the pictures upside down and the potted plants looked splendid in his shower. We mismatched his socks, rolled them neatly as if properly paired and replaced them in his dresser drawer. Then we sprinkled itching powder in his shorts. I kept my date with him that evening and we had a lovely time. I said good night at my door.

Number Two moved out the following day and neigher one of us has heard from him since. -- Got Even In Canoga Park

Dear Got Even: Even though you live in L.A., you took Chicago Mayor Daley's advice: "Don't get mad – get even."

Thanks for the lulu.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers's booklet, " Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Dogs are out for revenge

By DALE FORBIS

The score was 41-0 and, although you haven't heard those specific numbers mentioned, you can be sure that they're on the minds of every Sikeston football player as they head to Poplar Bluff for the season's final game. Those 41 points were Poplar Bluff's margin of victory in last year's last game. With several turnovers giving the Mules and fullback Scott Harrell the football on the Dogs' side of the fifty countless times in the first half, Sikeston lost the last vestige of pride that could be salvaged from a 1-8 season -- the right to say that the final won-lost record was deceiving. Any such remarks and the skeptical listener would just point to that 41-0 score and fail to hear anything else said. It won't be easy, but there would be no sweeter victory than a season-ender over the up and down Mules of coach Tom Telle.

By dropping two conference games to underdogs Cape and Charleston the Mules are now a longshot for the conference title, after being ranked among the state's top ten, most of the season. A team of marvelous talent still remains, but motivating those footballers is a tough job for coach Telle.

"It's definitely tough," responded Telle to an inquiry about emotion. "After losing to Cape, we really let down."

Now the 7-2 Mules take on a much-improved Sikeston team. Much-improved is an over used, but accurate description of the 1975 version of the Bulldgos.

"They've got a good offense," says Telle. "Their defense is aggressive and I can tell by looking at a program that they're a lot bigger this year."

Hard work in the offseason added muscle to the lanky Bulldog frames. Blessed with what is mostly a hardworking group of seniors, coach Terry Smith has produced a winning ball team in his third year. Most football people in the district thought the veteran coach would accomplish the return of respectability, but nearly all thought the days of winning were still a year or so off. Not so. With the community and student body taking the team to their hearts, it became like a family affair. Nineteen seniors play their final game against the Mules and, win or lose, it'll be a sad time for those 19. However, they will have the good memories and the knowledge that they were instrumental in putting the Sikeston program back on its feet.

The Mules, meanwhile, are trying to end their season with a win and give themselves at least an outside shot at a conference title in a frenzied Northern division race. Although Jackson and Charleston would have to lose at least once in the next two weeks for the Mules to tie them (and Sikeston) for the top spot, that result would be much preferrable to a 3-3 conference finish after being ranked as high as third among the state's 4-A teams just a few short weeks ago.

The Mules have a good offense. They have averaged near 30 points per game and managed to score 27, while losing to Charleston last week. The defense, which was so tough earlier in the year, has relaxed since the loss to Cape. But, the Mules still have Mike Moss, the finest among an outstanding crop of runners in the district.

"Mike Moss is as good as any back I've ever seen," says Sikeston coach Terry Smith.

"I think that Greg Johnson at Charleston is just as good," he went on, "and there are the two good runners at Jackson and our own Wilder and Beanf. It's just a good year for runners."

However, don't overlook the Poplar Bluff passing attack. Tracy Edington calls the signals for the Mules and the senior does his job well. His throwing was outstanding against Charleston.

"We knew they'd stack to stop our running," explains Telle. "Edington has thrown very well all year."

Operating out of a slot-I formation, Edington has receivers Jeff Jones, Steve James, Phil Braden and Mark Harrell to throw to. Moss is joined in the backfield by fullback David Webb.

A tough job faces the Bulldogs. If they beat the Mules they will have defeated the conference's largest team in size and, probably, talent. Poplar Bluff has already blasted one undefeated 4-A squad (House Springs- Northwest) by a score of 46-0. The Bulldogs won't have Charleston's speed to chase Moss down from behind if he gets wide. But, they will have the desire to give a good effort and hit the talented Mules hard.

"We just stood around against Jackson last week," said Smith, explaining defensive difficulties in a 14-0 loss.

Sikeston won't just stand around against Poplar Bluff. They will hustle and hit like there isn't any tomorrow. There is one, though. The Bulldogs of 1975 have given the Sikeston fans a promising one.

NEW YORK (AP) — Pat Wolff, a 25-year-old freshman who enrolled at Essex Community college for the sole purpose of entering an air hockey tournament, won that tournament and a $5,000 scholarship for the school Thursday.

Wolff, who lists music as his major, defeated Rod Yamanaka of Cal State at Los Angeles in the North American Collegiate Air Hockey Tournament at a hotel here. The sponsoring company sent a check for $5,000 to the winner's College Park, Md., school.

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Ninth-ranked heavyweight Chuck Wepner of Bayonne, N.J., is scheduled to fight Irish Jimmy Evans of Pittsburgh, Pa., in a 10-round bout here on Nov. 13.

Promoter Sam Silverman said Thursday that the Portland Expo bout will be Wepner's first since he lost to world champion Muhammad Ali by a technical knockout in the 15th round.

BOSTON (AP) — John Claiborne, 36, who left the Oakland A's after a falling out with owner Charlie Finley during the past baseball season, has been added to the Boston Red Sox' front office staff.

Claiborne, who joined the Red Sox as a scout in September, was named Thursday an executive assistant to Dick O'Connell, executive vice president and general manager.

HAZEL PARK, Mich. (AP) — The Hazel Park Racetrack announced Thursday it will increase purses by $300 a race beginning Saturday, the second boost in less than two weeks.

The $300 hike for the final 22 days of racing at the ⅝-mile track comes 10 days after the track boosted purses by $300 a race for all but the lowest claiming events.

Hess is North's top passer

Charleston's Kevin Hess has assumed the leadership in passing yardage in the Northern Division, according to this week's SEMO Football Conference statistics, as compiled by The Daily Standard.

Hess, who completed five passes for 85 yards in the Bluejays' victory over Poplar Bluff last week, moved ahead of Kennett quarterback Randy Baker, who sat out much of the game against Cape Central and did not complete a pass.

Poplar Bluff tailback Mike Moss still holds a commanding lead in both the rushing and scoring statistics. Moss carries a hefty 9.3 yard-per-carry rushing average, despite being shut down by Charleston. His 128 total points are tops in the area.

In the Southern Division, East Prairie's Richard Thurmond continued toward what might lead to a possible repeat selection to the 2-A all state team by hauling in seven passes last week. Thurmond now has caught 30 aerials, eight of them for touchdowns.

The Eagles' Danny Johnson still leads the south in rushing, while teammate Benny Bradley is the leading scorer. Caruthersville quarterback Audie Tarpley remains the South's leading passer.

In the Bootheel Division, Illmo-Scott City star Steve Hanschen cracked the 1,000 yard mark and leads the league in rushing with 1,007. Steve Cox of Doniphan is not far behind with 957 yards. Hanschen is also the leading scorer with 78 points, although Doniphan's Bill Jenkins is only two points behind. Jenkins is the conference's top passer with 535 yards, while South Pemiscot's James Cooper leads the league in receptions with 16.

SPORTS CORNER

Although the varsity's 6-3 record indicates a great improvement in the Sikeston program, it isn't the whole story. Despite the fact that 19 seniors leave after this year and vacate 13 offensive and defensive positions, the future is as bright as it has been for Sikeston football during the past ten years. The 8th grade, freshman and junior varsity football teams combined this past fall for a collective 17-3-2 record, promising a bright tomorrow for Sikeston football by supplying the varsity coaches with an abundance of talent.

Sikeston's junior varsity finished with a record of 6-1-2. After opening with a tie against East Prairie and a loss to Jackson,the jayvee won six of their last seven games. Only a 14-14 tie with Poplar Bluff marred the record. The team was coached by Tom Horton and Al Holmes.

The junior varsity's defense was its strongest point.

"There are a lotof hard hitters out there," said varsity coach Terry Smith, speaking of a defense that racked up six shutouts in nine games and didn't allow a point in the last 14 quarters. Tailback Glynn Felton led jayvee scorers with eight touchdowns and thee conversions for 54 points, despite starting only the last five games. Quarterback Joe Davis scored 44 on six t-d's and four conversions.

The junior varsity scored 142 points and allowed 32.

Coaches George Hale and Martin Bass enjoyed the fruits of the rejuvanated junior high program, enroute to a 5-2 record.

The season opened with a 20-0 loss to Jackson, but the team played well the rest of the way, losing only to Poplar Bluff 14-8. Cape was defeated by the freshmen for the first time in ten years.

A stable of good runners, a strong offensive and defensive line and pretty good size were the earmarks of the Bullpups. The team scored 126 points and gave up 62.

Coach Mike Foster's eighth grade team became the first undefeated Sikeston team in any sport at any level for several years. The junior high team waltzed through six games easily, marking up a 6-0 record and benefitted a g reat deal from a new little league football organization started in Sikeston a year before.

No opponent scored more than once against the most prolific scoring team in the Sikeston program. Marking up 140 points in six games, the eighth-graders averaged 23.3 points per game.

Size and enthusiasm were prevalent on the undefeated squad. Several of the team members approached the 160-180 pound range. The squad was one of the largest in numbers, too, with more than 50 members.

Congratulations are also in order for the 19 seniors who conclude a successful season at Poplar Bluff. These seniors of '76 have given their younger teammates a step forward to a brighter future for Sikeston on the gridiron. The seniors are: Quarterback Ron Priday (12), Running Back Mike Lambert (22), Dog Man Mike Hamra (24), Safety Curtis McKinney (40), Fullback Scott Scherer (41), End Jeff Baker (42), Linebacker Rob Newman (44), End Joe Green (45), Defensive end Doug Reynolds (53), Center Jeff Minner (00), Guard Bob Marshall (62), Tackle Fred Gilliland (63), Defensive Tackle Mark Sullivan (69), Defensive tackle Bill Busby (770), Tackle Wade Barber (72), Guard Mike Bohannon (78), End Chris Alberts (87), Defensive end Rodney Littleton (88), and Guard Keith Dill (93).

Dr. Lamb

Diet secondary in gout

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband has had the gout very bad for about five years now. He is on Allopurinol, 100 mg twice a day, and has Butazolidin to take when he does have an attack.

I know that diet is the main factor, however, I have spent many hours trying to make a basic list of foods you can eat sometimes, never, etc.

Medical books break it down into low-in-fat, proteins, free from purine, but I don't understand which foods have what. I'd like to know where I could find a basic, simple list that would list the foods and if you should or should not have them.

DEAR READER — Your problem is that diet is no longer considered so important in the treatment of gout, at least to lower the blood uric acid level. You can do that with medicines. You need a basic understanding of gout, which you can get by sending 50 cents for The Health Letter number 2-3, Gout, Uric Acid. Just write me for it in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing.

That issue of The Health Letter will explain uric acid to you, how you get acute attacks of gout, what you can do to prevent them and the complications of gout.

Uric acid forms a salt and crystals of these settle in the joint space and cause the typical acute attack of gout. You are not correct in saying that diet is the most important thing. Gout is a metabolic disease, just as surely as diabetes or thyroid disease. People are born with the tendency to form uric acid, and there is a familial tendency, regardless of what you eat.

The uric acid is a side product of forming nucleic acids for the nuclei of your many body cells. The nucleic acid formation to make new cells uses purines. This is where purines come in, and the nuclei of cells are rich in purine.

The standard gout diet limits the ingestion of purine in the diet (but I hasten to add eliminating purine entirely will not prevent high uric acid levels in a patient with gout). High purine foods are those with lots of nuclei in their cells, specifically organ meats such as liver, sweetbreads, kidneys and brains. Other high purine foods are beans, anchovies, peas, cauliflower, eggplant and sardines. Milk does not contain body cells, so milk and milk products are purine free.

In addition to these food items, a person with gout should be on a diet that prevents obesity and helps prevent heart and vascular disease. Here is where you need to use a diet that is low in fat and cholesterol and doesn't provide too many calories. Gout patients are particularly prone to heart disease, so this is a wise move.

While on the subject of obesity, may thin people have gout. The obese individual should not go on a crash diet. That is one way to precipitate an acute attack of gout. As you destroy those body cells from unwise dieting you release purines from their nuclei and increase the uric acid level.

The other dietary precaution is to avoid alcoholic beverages, particularly champagnes and heavy wines and beer.

What's the law?

The case of the flirty legal fellows

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

During a heated court battle, there was more ham in the courtroom than in most butcher shops. The two opposing lawyers, exhibiting every known emotion, employed every theatrical gimmick they could think of in trying their case.

In fact, the judge even suspected that one of them had been stooped to throwing romantic glances at one or more of the female jurors. Consequently, before the jurors left the courtroom to consider their verdict, the judge warned them:

"Now remember," he said, "stage play acting and flirting with jurors by the lawyers should not be allowed to influence your decision. While flirting may be flattering, it's not evidence."

In due course, the jury returned its verdict and the losing attorney demanded a new trial on appeal.

"I was accused of being a flirt by the trial judge," he complained. "And since nobody likes a flirt, the jury was predjudiced against me in arriving at their decision. Therefore, I'm entitled to a new trial."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant the attorney a new trial because of the flirtatious accusation..

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the complaining lawyer had not been predjudiced since the trial judge did not mention which attorney, if either, had been flirting. What's more, the judge noted, if the complaining attorney was innocent, the jury knew it and no harm was done. On the other hand, if he was guilty, he had no cause to complain.

More people watching, but fewer TV sets on

NEW YORK (AP) — Each year the national television audience increases. But something curious may be happening in viewing patterns this season. It seems that fewer TV sets are on, but more people are watching them.

Question: Does this indicate that we've reached the point where television's bubble finally has burst and viewers are turning their sets off more this season than in past years?

"I would hesitate to think that anyone could draw that conclusion," says Mike Weinblatt, NBC-TV's executive vice president. "I think it's probably much too premature to know exactly what has happened. But I don't think people's tastes and interests change that dramatically."

Still, NBC is so puzzled by the paradoxical drop in set usage and the rise in viewing that its top research man, Bill Rubens, is closely examining the audience-sampling methods of the A.C. Nielsen ratings company to see if anything's been changed from past years.

Rubens says the number of homes in which TV sets are on during the prime evening hours dropped by four per cent in the first seven weeks of the current season, compared to the same period last year.

At the same time, he says, "the proportion of people viewing is up by one per cent" to about 81,470,000 souls watching each night.

"So there are more people viewing, according to Nielsen, in fewer homes," he says.

Weinblatt frankly admits "that at the moment we're unable to explain it." He says the number of viewers and sets in use in homes usually "follow the same trends." When one figure goes up or down, so does the other.

"So to the research people, this (new development) becomes inexplicable when more people are watching in fewer homes," he says.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, November 7, the 311th day of 1975. There are 54 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1917, the Bolsheviks overthrew the short-lived Kerensky government in Russia, and Nikolai Lenin became the new head of government.

On this date:

In 1659, the Pyrenees were fixed as the boundary between France and Spain, ending a 24-year war.

In 1811, the Shawnee Indians were defeated in the Battle of Tippecanoe in Indiana.

In 1885, the Canadian Pacific Railroad was completed.

In 1918, a false report that Germany had accepted World War One peace terms set off great excitement.

In 1942, the Allied invasion of North Africa began in World War Two.

In 1944, Franklin Roosevelt was elected to an unprecedented fourth term.

Ten years ago: The Soviet Union displayed three new compact, highly maneuverable rocket systems at a military parade in Moscow's Red Square.

Five years ago: A 19-year-old Canadian student told an inquest in Montreal that he and three other men had abducted Labor Minister Pierre Laporte of Quebec, who later was slain.

One year ago: Following elections, the Democrats had a two-thirds majority in the House of Representatives and three-fifths in the Senate.

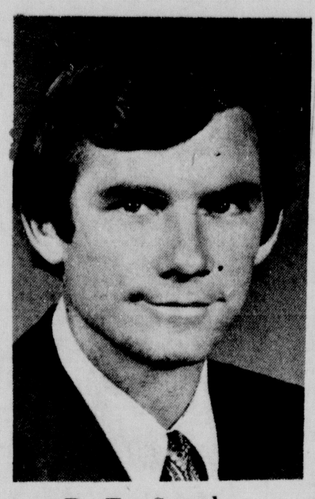
First Methodist to host seminar



Dr. Tex Sample

First United Methodist Church, Highway 61 North, will host a three-session seminar study Saturday night and Sunday on the subject, "What Is A Redemptive Church?"

Dr. Tex Sample, a professor at Saint Paul School of Theology in Kansas City, will be the study leader.

The first session is scheduled from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Saturday in the church social hall, following a hamburger supper at 6:30 p.m. for the convenience of persons planning to attend. The second session at 9:30 a.m. Sunday will meet during the Sunday School hour, and the last session will meet from 2 to 3:30 p.m. Sunday afternoon.

The Rev. Dr. Sample received a doctor of philosophy degree in 1964 in the field of social ethics and sociology of religion at the Boston University School of Theology. He pastored churches in Mississippi and Massachusetts for eight years before joining the faculty of St. Paul School of Theology, where he serves as faculty representative to the board of trustees and helped design the doctor of ministry program.

Dr. Arthur C. Fulbright, pastor, says all persons interested in increasing the effectiveness of churches are welcome to participate in the three sessions of the weekend seminar study.

A questionnaire checked by the membership of First Methodist showed much interest in such questions as: What are the tests of a living church? Where is the Kingdom of God today and how does the church live in it? What does it mean to be a redemptive church? How can the church help persons to make God real in their lives? The Rev. Dr. Sample's service as consultant to a large number of church, community, business and governmental organizations gives him a broad background of experience from which to draw as leader of the study, the Rev. Dr. Fulbright stated.

The church planning committee hopes many persons from other churches will attend part or all of these discussions, thereby enriching the study for all.

Wheels parade to be held Saturday

A citywide wheels parade, sponsored by First Assembly of God Church to promote a Kids Krusade beginning Sunday, is scheduled Saturday at 10 a.m. Participants in the parade may ride a unicycle, bicycle, tricycle, minibike or motorcycle. No cars will be allowed, and all motorized vehicles—minibikes, motorcycles, etc.—must be properly licensed and driven by a driver with the motorcycle license.

The parade will be preceded by decorating and judging for the best decorated. Cycles may be decorated at the starting point at 9 a.m. or may be decorated prior to arrival. Judging will commence promptly at 9:45 a.m. in the parking lot at First Assembly of God, 306 S. Kingshighway.

Cash awards for the best decorated cycles will be $5 for first, $3 for second and $2 for third. The awards will be presented at the conclusion of the parade at approximately noon.

The parade will begin at the corner of South Kingshighway and East Kathleen Avenue and proceed south on Kingshighway to Gladys Street, west on Gladys to Scott Street, south on Scott to Ruth Street, west on Ruth to South West Street, south on South West to Agnes Street, west on Agnes to Branum Avenue, south on Branum to Murray Lane, the halfway point. The parade will then proceed east on Murray Lane to South Prairie Street, then north on Prairie to Kathleen and west on Kathleen to the parking lot at First Assembly of God for the presentation of the awards.

The parade will be escorted by the Sikeston Police Department.

The Kids Krusade Sunday through Friday nights will feature gospel ventriloquist Tim Meyers of Jefferson City in services from 7 to 8:30 nightly.

Mass celebrated at youth gathering

Eight area priests participated in celebration of mass Sunday during a half-day gathering of Catholic youth at the Sikeston National Guard Armory. Participating in the mass, from left, are the Rev. Ray Kunkel of St. Ambrose Catholic Church in Chaffee, the Rev. Mark Binder of St. Mary's Cathedral in Cape Girardeau, the Rev. Oscar Lukefahr of St. Vincent's in Cape Girardeau, the Rev. Robert Schumacher of St. Francis Xavier in Sikeston, the Rev. Dan Hirtz of St. Mary's in Cape Girardeau, the Rev. John Lovelle of Sacred Heart in Poplar Bluff, the Rev. Richard Rolwing of Guardian Angel in Oran and the Rev. Michael McDevitt of St. Ambrose in Chaffee. Other priests present for the program, titled "Getting Together '75", were the Revs. Woody Baker of St. Denis Catholic Church in Benton and the Rev. Francis Donovan of St. Lawrence in New Hamburg. About 300 youths from as far north as Jackson and as far south and west as Portageville and Poplar Bluff, participated in events which included rap sessions in the afternoon, celebration of mass, a buffet dinner and dance.

2 youths to lead services at Miner

Two young men, who announced decisions to enter full-time Christian service during revival services last month at Miner Baptist Church, will take their first steps in that direction by filling positions of leadership during Sunday's services.

Jimmy Matthews, who plans to begin study for the ministry, will preach his first sermon during the 10:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. worship services, and Bob McReynolds, who plans to become a full-time minister of music, will lead the singing. The youth group of the church will be in charge of both services.

Matthews, a sophomore at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau, will fill the pulpit in the absence of the Rev. Grady Etheridge, pastor, who is conducting revival services ending Sunday at Kilbourne, Ill.

Both Matthews and McReynolds plan to enroll at Southwest Baptist College in Bolivar next semester to begin training for their newly chosen careers.

Matthews is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Matthews, 221 Greer St., and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Ben O. Matthews, 609 Elm St. McReynolds is the son of Bob McReynolds, 807 Pine St., and Mrs. Mona Dement, 911 Crescent Drive.

Ventriloquist to lead Kids

Tim Meyers, a gospel ventriloquist from Jefferson City, will conduct a citywide Kids Krusade from 7 to 8:30 Sunday through Friday night at First Assembly of God Church, 306 S. Kingshighway.

One of America's finest ventriloquists, Meyers features a family of puppets each night of the crusade. He has Bert & Ernie & Cookie Monster of Sesame Street; Cecil the talking donkey; Pepe, the dancing marionette; the Mad Professor; Fluffy, the cuddly rabbit; Rubin and Marco Polo; and many more.

He is best known, however, for his life-size dummy named Denny, who seems so real you begin talking to him. Denny shakes hands, raises his eyebrows, turns his head, blinks and winks at the girls.

Meyers—Uncle Tim to most kids—calls the puppets his Barn Yard Gang, as he carries them around the country with a portable barn.

Uncle Tim is 25 years old and travles with his wife Barbara who helps him in all of their Kids Krusades. Tim is the brother of the Rev. Len Meyers, associate pastor at First Assembly of God and attended Central Bible College in Springfield and Zion Bible Institute in Rhode island.

Churches growing in India

Christian churches are growing in India despite discrimination Christians often face from government officials, the Rev. Anderson Kwankin of Agra, India, told the Sikeston Lions Club at its noon meeting Wednesday.

The Rev. Mr. Kwankin said the discrimination is not the fault of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi. He said the problem arises with lower level government officers who ignore Christians when it comes time to hand out government aid.

Even so, the Rev. Mr. Kwankin stated, the number of Christians in India is constantly growing as people convert from the Hindu religion. Hindis account for 85 per cent of the population and Christians for only 2.5 per cent.

The Rev. Mr. Kwankin was in Sikeston to participate in a New World Mission program which began Sunday and ended Thursday night at Wesley United Methodist Church.

Even though they are discriminated against, Christians have a good reputation in India, he said.

The mission hospital at Agra is always full because of its reputation for good medical care. Christian schools and colleges are also highly regarded, the Rev. Mr. Kwankin said.

He said he knew of several Hindu girls who recently married Christian men. When he asked them why they chose Christian husbands, they said they did so because they had heard that Christians made good husbands.

The Rev. Mr Kwankin said he does not agree with all of Prime Minister Gandhi's policies, but at least one good thing — control of inflation — has come from the government's emergency rule.

He said hunger and starvation are not regular features of the country, only during bad weather when there is too little or too much rain.

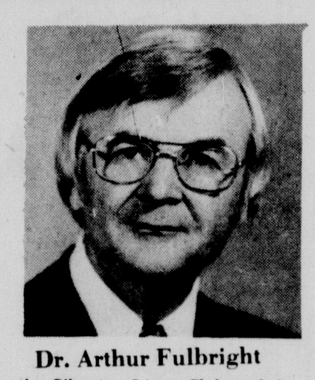
Agra, where the Rev. Mr. Kwankin lives, is the site of the Taj Mahal.

Youth revival begins tonight

COMMERCE - Youth revival services will be conducted tonight, Saturday night and Sunday at the Commerce Baptist Church by a youth team from Southern Baptist College at Walnut Ridge, Ark.

The services will begin at 7:30 each evening, according to the Rev. Dean Hency, pastor.

Revival services slated at Marston



Dr. Arthur Fulbright

MARSTON—Revival services will be conducted next Wednesday through Friday nights at the Marston United Methodist Church.

The evangelist for the 7:30 p.m. services will be Dr. Arthur C. Fulbright, pastor of First United Methodist Church in Sikeston. Special music will be provided in the Friday service by the Young Evangel of Paragould, Ark.

Prior to becoming pastor of the Sikeston church in June, the Rev. Dr. Fulbright served as minister of Wilkes Boulevard United Methodist Church at Columbia for six years and is a former pastor of the Dexter United Methodist Church.

Born in Malden to the late Rev. William A. Fulbright and Mrs. Elizabeth Skidmore Fulbright, who has since remarried and lives in Malden, he has earned bachelor of arts, bachelor of science in education, bachelor of theology and doctor of theology degrees at Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau, McKendree Methodist College and Graduate School at Lebanon, Ill., and Greenville College and Theological School at Greenville, Ill.

The Rev. Dr. Fulbright and his wife, the former Geraldine Bell of Greenville, Mo., have three married daughters, Mary Elizabeth Clements and LaRhondda Lynn Powers of Mountain Home, Ark., and Pamela Ruth Schmidtke of Alma, Mich.

Non-ministerial interests of the Rev. Dr. Fulbright include membership in the Order of St. Luke of the United Methodist Church, Masons, Scottish Rite, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled American Veterans, the Sikeston Lions Club and the Missouri American Legion Back to God Department. He also is interested in boy and girl scouting and his hobbies include camping, hunting, fishing, hiking, canoeing, writing and speaking.

Homecoming slated Sunday

ESSEX - Castor River General Baptist Church, located in the Clines Island community on Route Two, will observe its annual homecoming Sunday with all-day services and dinner at the church.

The afternoon program will feature singing by the Gospel Tones Quartet.

Calvary crusade to end Sunday

A revival crusade in progress at Calvary Assembly Church, 127 W. Trotter St., since Sunday will conclude Sunday night, according the the Rev. R. A. McDonough, pastor.

The evanglist, the Rev. J. Herman Alexander of Charlotte, N. C., has ministered across America for 38 yers and has preached before such large congregations as Angelus Temple in Los Angeles, Oak Cliff Assembly at Dallas, Cathedral of Tomorrow at Akron, Ohio, and Calvary Temple at Springfield.

A Sunday School attendance goal of 400 has been set for Sunday, which, if reached, will be a record for the 18-month-old Calvary congregation.

Tonight's service will begin at 7 o'clock. Sunday's services include Sunday School at 9:30 and preaching services at 10:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. No service will be conducted Saturday night.

He has experience in evangelistic preaching and has served as pastor at Ladd Chapel in Zalma and Shady Dell General Baptist Church at McGee, as well as serving as interim pastor of other churches.

THE BIBLE
No. 212. Job Declares His Innocence

Job listened carefully to the speech of Eliphaz, and then declared his innocence and begged for death: "Oh that I might have my request; and that God would grant me the thing that I long for! Even that it would please God to destroy me; that he would let loose his hand, and cut me off!" (Job 6:8-9)

Then Job sternly rebuked his friends for surmising that he had been false to them or to God.

"How forcible are right words! but what doth your arguing reprove? Do ye imagine to reprove words, and the speeches of one that is desperate, which are as wind? Yea, ye overwhelm the fatherless, and ye dig a pit for your friend. Now therefore be content; look upon me: for it is evident unto you if I lie. Return, I pray you, let it not be iniquity; yea, return again, my righteousness is in it. Is there iniquity in my tongue? Cannot my taste discern perverse things?" (Job 6:25-30)

Newest Insulation System Cuts Costly Heating Bill

If you're thinking of building a new home you may be able to reduce heating and cooling costs as much as 2/3 by buying the New Highlander Home from Galemore Instant Housing featuring the new simple wood framing system.

Most homes today are built using 2x4 wood wall if frameing, with studs spaced 16" apart. The new wall framing system uses 2x6 wood studs at 24" intervals This allows the cavity between the studs to be filled with six inches of insulation rather than the usual 3½". The Ceiling of the house can be filled with 8" rather than the customary 6 inches. This is double the insulation needed or required by F.H.A. standards. How much will this new system save YOU?

Heating and cooling cost of the conventionally insulated homes were $362. per year. But into the wood framing system home only $142 per year. This ammounted to a savings of $220. or nearly 2/3 lower. Over 12 years that ammounts to the price of a compact car.

In a wood framing home the wood framing requires 24% less energy for Heating and 18% less energy for Air Conditioning than comparable structures.

IF YOU'RE INTERESTED IN SAVING MONEY ON HEATING AND AIR CONDITIONING BILLS THEN YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF TO SEE THE LEADER IN SERVING THE PUBLIC WITH SAVING IDEAS

2 damage suits filed

BENTON — Damages totaling $370,000 are sought in two suits involving traffic accidents which were filed Monday and Tuesday in Scott County Circuit Court.

The larger suit, seeking $220,000, was filed Tuesday by R. V. Bowers and Sherry Bowers against Mary L. Schumachher.

The suit contends that on Sept. 30 Mrs. Schumacher negligently backed onto West Malone Avenue in Sikeston into the path of a motorcycle driven by Bowers, causing the vehicles to collide.

As a result of the accident, the suit states that Bowers received ruptured internal organs, multiple fractures to the face and left foot, whiplash injuries and nerve and muscle injuries to his back.

The suit also states that the injuries have caused Bowers to lose rest and sleep, also the strength, use and function of his injured limbs and organs and that he has incurred expenses and will continue to have medical expense since the injuries are permanent and progressive.

Bowers asks $200,000 in damages for his injuries.

In count two of the suit Sherry Bowers, his wife, states that the injuries to her husband have caused her to lose the society, consortium, companionship, love, affection and supoport of her husband.

She seeks damages in the amount of $20,000.

In a suit filed Monday, Betty Jean Crawford and George Crawford seek damages totaling $150,000 from Howard Andrew Dunaway as a result of an automobile accident that occurred Oct. 14, 1974.

The suit charges that Dunaway operated his vehicle in a negligent manner when he drove from the parking lot of the War Drum Restaurant onto East Malone Avenue in Sikeston into the path of an auto driven by Mrs. Crawford.

The suit states that Mrs. Crawford received severe injuries to her chest, abdomen, pelvic region, whiplash to her neck and back and bruises on other areas of her body. Since receiving the injuries, the suit states that she has not been gainfully employed or able to do normal household duties, has been hospitalized on numerous occasions and in the future will need to be hospitalized and expend large sums of money.

In count one, Mrs. Crawford seeks damages of $100,000.

In count two, her husband states that as a result of the injuries to his wife, he has been deprived of the service of his wife to provide normal household duties and will be permanently deprived of the comfort, solace and services ordinarily provided by a wife in good health.

He further states it will be necessary for him to expend large sums of money for her future medical treatment and asks $50,000 in damages.

Jobless rate up in October

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate rose from 8.3 to 8.6 per cent of the labor force in October, reversing a four month decline, the government reported today.

The bleak job report following Thursday's announcement of a new spurt of inflation last month was a double blow to the Ford administration, which is certain to face new questions over its efforts to pull the economy from the worst recession since the 1930s.

In its report, the Labor Department said the number of unemployed in October increased by 230,000 to 8 million. The number of Americans with jobs stood at 85.4 million, about the same as in September.

The size of the nation's labor force increased, rising by about 250,000 to 93.4 million last month.

The increase in joblessness last month was the first since the unemployment rate reached its recession peak of 9.2 per cent last May. Since then, unemployment had dropped gradually as the nation began its recovery from the recession, falling to 8.6 per cent in June and dropping further to 8.4 per cent during the summer and finally to 8.3 per cent in September.

Labor Department officials attributed most of the increased jobless in October to persons re-entering the labor force, apparently in the hope of finding work as production in the nation's factories picked up.

Some economists have expressed concern over the strength of the economic recovery, particularly over fears that renewed inflation could abort new growth.

Inflation as measured by the wholesale price index jumped 1.8 per cent in October, the sharpest rise in a year, the government reported Thursday. At the White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the price news caused some concern among the President's economic advisers but that they wanted to "see evidence over a somewhat longer period of time" before reaching any new conclusions on the economy's direction.

Despite the new upturn in unemployment, not all of the job report was bad.

The government noted that the number of unemployed seeking jobs for 27 weeks or more — the so-called hard-core unemployed — declined, as did the average length of unemployment. A drop from 16.2 to 15.4 weeks in the average duration of unemployment last month was the first decline since the beginning of the year. The number of hardcore unemployed dropped by about 200,000 to nearly 1.4 million.

There was little change in the jobless rate among the major groups in the labor force.

Unemployment rates for adult men rose from 7 to 7.1 per cent; teenagers from 19.3 to 19.9 per cent, and adult women, up from 7.5 to 7.8 per cent.

The jobless rate for married men edged down from 5.3 to 5.2 per cent, but the rate for household heads, often a family's chief bread winner rose from 5.7 to 5.9 per cent.

Jobless rates for blacks and other minorities held steady in October at 14.2 per cent while the rate for whites, which had been gradually declining from its high of 8.2 per cent in the second quarter, rose from 7.6 to 7.9 per cent last month.

While most occupational and industry sectors show little or no unemployment change in October, the government reported a rise among clerical workers and persons in the finance and service industries — areas which traditionally provided a large proportion of the jobs held by women.

Total non-farm payrolls increased for the fourth straight month in October, rising by 220,000 to 77.5 million, the government said. Employment gains were found in 63 per cent of 172 industries surveyed by the Labor Department last month, compared with about 75 per cent in the previous two months.

In manufacturing, employment rose by 110,000, with nearly all of the increase in the nondurable goods sector. The apparel, food and textile industries posted the largest gains.

Jobs in the construction industry declined by another 30,000 last month after having stabilized somewhat since June. Jobs in construction, among the industries hardest hit by the recession, were off by about 730,000 from an all time peak in early 1974.

The nation's total employment, at 85.4 million, is about 1.5 million higher than it was last March during the recession, but still nearly a million below peak employment in September, 1974, before the economic decline set in.

Average hourly earnings last month rose two cents to $4.62, while average weekly earnings increased $1.18 to $167.24. Factory overtime declined slightly last month while the average work week for all production workers edged up one-tenth of an hour to 36.2 hours, the same as the August level.

David says surgery 'lot better than dying'

David went home today to California, Mo., with doctor's orders to stay away from friends, new marrow in his bones and a good chance to live to a ripe old age.

He left the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center, where his nonfunctioning bone marrow was replaced with four cups of the vital fluid extracted from his brother, Christopher, 16.

What was it like, to make a fearful trip in late July to an unknown city, not knowing if he would see home again?

"It was bad," a quiet David said over the telephone. "But for what it was, it wasn't that bad. In other words, it was a lot better than dying."

David's recovery from the nonmalignant disease aplastic anemia has been almost abnormal in its success, although it will take his body nearly two years to return to normal.

"So far he's doing very well," said Dr. Penny Koch, who has been in charge of the boy who turned 13 on Oct. 25.

"At present he certainly seems to have very few problems," continued Dr. Koch. "His blood counts—that's how we measure this—are almost all the way back to normal."

She said there would be some worry for awhile concerning rejection of the bone marrow graft, but that the main worry the next few months is the risk of infection. "Some of these things that offer protection from diseases, like antibodies, are not back to normal for 1½ to two years," said Dr. Koch.

For that reason, David will have to wear the mask over his face for some time, and won't be able to go back to school until the fall of 1976.

He said he is getting used to the mask, which he wore on a ferry boat outing Wednesday. The ferry ride was an adventure the boy had asked to go on before he returned to California.

Another adventure he had was in early September when President Ford visited the newly-named Fred Hutchinson Cancer Center, and stopped by to visit David and signed his medical chart.

Going home with David and his mother, Joyce, is a bill that earlier news accounts put at $20,000 to $25,000. Mrs. Anderson said she wasn't sure how much the total bill would come to, but that it would be at least partially defrayed by the generosity of contributors in Missouri and the Seattle area.

REA Express is bankrupt

The Associated Press reported today that REA Express, the nation's largest surface carrier, will go out of business in a week to 10 days, but a spokesman for the Sikeston office of the firm said this morning he had heard nothing official and did not know how long his office would remain open.

REA Express has been judged bankrupt and the business will be liquidated, according to a company spokesman in New York.

Only two people are employed at the Sikeston office, but the firm employes 8,000 people nationwide.

The decision to liquidate the business was reached Thursday in federal bankruptcy court in New York. The company has been operating under Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy laws since Feb. 18.

"We will deliver all the freight that is in the system at this time," spokesman for the firm in New York said, "And then they will sell everything."

When it filed for reorganization in February, the company made various cutbacks that included holding back about 10 per cent of the weekly pay of its employes. At the time, employes were told they would get the money after the company got back on its feet.

REA Express operates 232 terminals in the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico.

Archaeology group tours Lilbourn site

Bill Markwort, professor of anthropology at University of Missouri-Columbia, stressed the importance of Missouri archaeological research during a luncheon Thursday at the Ramada Inn, Highway 62 East.

The luncheon gave University of Missouri alumni and members of the Southeast Missouri Archaeological Society an opportunity to hear Dr. Carl Chapman, archaeologist in charge of the university's excavation at the Lilbourn Prehistoric Indian Site, as well as university president Dr. C. Brice Ratchford and Board of Curators president John Hall Dalton of Kennett, who both praised Dr. Chapman's work.

Earlier in the day, a group toured the Lilbourn site, where Dr. Chapman showed them his progress in unearthing evidence of a large fortified village which was occupied by the Mississippian Indians from about 1090 to 1450 A.D.

The excavation work, which began in 1969 with contributions from the National Endowment for the Humanities and individuals from the New Madrid-Lilbourn area, may be near an end unless additonal sources of funding can be found.

Already, Dr. Chapman and his associates have found out much about Southeast Missouri's early inhabitants who were largely agrarian, may have used primitive solar observatories and traded with

Court schedules hearings

BENTON — Ron Yersak of Malden, planning director of the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission, told the Scott County Court Thursday that preapplications for community development funds are now being accepted by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Yersak said each governmental unit must hold two public hearings before submitting preapplications for funds for the next fiscal year, which must be submitted before Dec. 15.

The County Court then set a public hearing for 7 p.m. Nov. 24 at the courthouse to discuss community development needs.

Another hearing will be held the same evening for the newly appointed County Planning and Zoning Commission. Yersak and Henry Galetschky, of Columbia, a planner for the University of Missouri Extension Service, will be present to explain the duties of the commission.

Public to discuss funding

NEW MADRID — A public meeting is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the council room of the Municipal Building, 560 Mott St., for citizens to participate in a discussion of the city's application for funds available from the Department of Housing and Urban Development, City Administrator Don Lloyd has announced.

Citizens are asked to attend and present their views concerning the need and use of discretionary funds for the next fiscal year.

East Prairie revises DWI ordinance

EAST PRAIRIE — Application for discretionary funds, adoption of a revised driving while intoxicated ordinance and objection to a planning and zoning ordinance pertaining to mobile homes were included on the agenda of Thursday night's City Council meeting.

City Manager Frank Carter announced a public hearing would be held at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 21 in the council chambers for discussion of the city's application to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for discretionary funds. A second public hearing will be held 15 days later.

Applications must be made by Dec. 18 and the maximum amount which could be funded is $400,000, Carter said. The public hearings are for citizen participation in discussing how the money, should it be granted, is to be used. If approved for the first year, Carter said the city will then be eligible for three additional years.

Mrs. James Smith voiced objection to a section of the planning and zoning ordinance which prohibits her from renting residential property for mobile home use.

Under the ordinance mobile homes are restricted to trailer parks and when a residential lot is vacated by trailer it cannot be re-rented for trailer space. This does not apply to owner-occupied mobile homes.

Mrs. Smith said she has owned the property for 17 years, long before the ordinance was adopted in 1972, and that during this time it has only been used as trailer space, giving her "grandfather rights" to continue using the lot for rental purposes.

She was referred to the planning and zoning commission and told if she was not satisfied with their ruling she could appeal to the council.

A revised city ordinance for driving while intoxicated was adopted to conform with state statutes by a three to two vote margin.

Under the revision, a first offense is punishable by fine of not less than $50 or a jail sentence of three months or both. A second offense within a three-year period will bring a mandatory jail sentence of not less than seven days ormore than six months. The third offense in the three year period will bring a sentence of not less than 45 days or more than six months. No fines will be assessed on second and third offenses. On the second and third offense, 12 points can be assessed on driver's license, which brings an automatic revocation.

HELP THE LITTLE FELLOW

The propaganda line out of Washington is that Members of Congress are eager to "help the little fellow." In actual fact, all too often one can point to examples which indicate that the attitude of some Congressmen toward "the little fellow" is to give him a good crack across the knuckles.

Such is the case of the Postal Service Subcommittee headed by Chairman James B. Hanley of New York, which recently ruled that all coin-operated photocopy machines must be removed from every Post Office lobby in the land by January 1st, 1976. Unless someone sees the way clear to reverse the ruling, many low-volume, self-service consumers — the elderly, low and middle income wage earners, small businessmen, inner-city residents and small town folks alike — will be deprived of a convenient service they have become accustomed to using.

Big business doesn't have to worry. They can buy or lease their own photocopy machines. The little fellow who goes to the post office to buy his stamps and mail his income tax returns, Social Security and Medicare-Medicaid claims, old age assistance, alien registration, legal papers, and so forth is the one who benefits most by having available the low-cost copy service in a convenient location.

What makes the Hanley committee ruling even more non-sensical is the fact that the photocopy machines are installed in the post office lobbies at no cost to the taxpayer; the machines are not leased or rented by the government, so there is no fixed commitment or financial investment; all the costs of operation and maintenance are borne by the vendor, and not the Postal Service; the individuals or companies who provide the equipment pay local sales taxes, personal property taxes, income taxes, and, as required, vending licenses or permits; hence, all revenue accruing to the Postal Service is pure profit.

How about it, Congressman Hanley? Will you reconsider the situation in this light, and really give the little fellow a break?

The guess was validated a couple of weeks ago when Tom Cheadle, a British MP, revealed in Parliament that plans for the machine tools used in Concorde's development and production were promptly delivered to the Russians by employe-comrades of the Euorpean firms with which the orders were placed.

While wage earners are painfully aware of the shrinking value of their dollar today, the Bureau of Labor statistics reports more evidence that household head income gains over recent years were mostly illusory.

Inflation and higher taxes nullified the yearly gains in gross earnings of household heads working in production or non-supervisory jobs as of 1973. Although their purchasing power did rise over a ten year period, inflation eroded their average annual increases in gross earnings by 65 to 80 per cent.

The median after-tax earnings of all household heads increased from 1963 to 1973 by $592, in terms of 1967 dollars, or from $4,782 to $5,374.

FEDERAL REVENUE SHARING IS TAXPAYERS' NIGHTMARE

It is said that when Congress passed revenue sharing it truly took leave of its senses, and here in Atchison county we have an example of its use that taxpayers won't forget.

In 1972 Americans were paying well in excess of $20 billion annually just to pay the interest on the federal debt, which was even then approaching $500 billion. But that year Congress, blissfully oblivious to this financial mess, decided to give away $30.2 billion over five years to the states and localities.

"Where in the hell do we get the money to pay for it?" asked Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D.-Wis.) at the time of its passage. Nelson, who is no slacker when it comes to voting for government spending programs, called it "fiscally irresponsible." And he added, "Those who spend the money ought to have the responsibility of raising the taxes."

Another Senate liberal, Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, also opposed revenue sharing and still opposes it.

In an interview, Mansfield expressed particular concern "about some of the uses the money is being put to, building bridle paths, and the like--a lot of things which I think are questionable. This is given out with a lavish hand. I'd rather see the money used to decrease the national debt."

Even Sen. Edmund Muskie (D.-Maine), one of the original promoters of revenue sharing, now concedes that one of the chief problems is that it gives money "to more than 38,000 jurisdictions, some of which have neither demonstrated a need nor provided a use for it."

Revenue sharing represents one big copout for state and local officials who have spent their governments into the red but fear the political consequences of either raising taxes or telling their constituents that cutbacks are needed. If the federal government can bail them out, they're home scotfree.

Congress caved in to the political demands of the cities and states--particularly the large urban giants--and agreed to do what the states and localities would not: borrow the additional money at high interest rates and, in effect, pay the ransom under dire threats of political retribution.

It was in 1972 when Congress embarked on its fiscally disastrous five-year, $30.2 billion escapade. But as of the beginning of fiscal 1975 almost $16 billion in federal funds could have been saved if Congress had so resolved through the appropriate legislation to permanently suspend the entire program.

Under the remaining program, $6.2 billion was to be distributed in fiscal 1975, $6.35 billion in fiscal 1976, and $3.3 billion for the first six months of fiscal 1977.

Hearings are being held on legislation to extend revenue sharing beyond fiscal 1977. Some are suggesting that it be made a permanent program. But with Congress' new budget-control committees ostensibly searching about for ways to cut billions of dollars--although their budget ceilings are higher than the Administration's--the remaining billions of revenue sharing would be a good place to start. It would result in no significant loss in jobs, affect no industries, but would reduce the mounting federal deficit by huge sums.

State and local bureaucrats would no doubt howl at the thought of losing this new pipeline to Washington's coffers, but the American taxpayers would heave a sigh of relief. If the states and localities so desperately need additional revenue, they can surely raise it on their own far more cheaply than the federal government. Congress should have the courage to honestly declare, "There is nothing to share. Our Treasury is in debt."

Yet even the spenders who now control the Capitol are not immune to public pressure. Given a massive outpouring of public reaction against this and other programs, votes can be turned against them.

THE NEW-OLD JOURNALISM

Today there is something called The New Journalism.

Actually, it's the old journalism.

What's happening today is that some young reporter believe their opinion, their conclusions about a story, shouldbe the subject they write about. That, in contrast to reporting the facts as objectively and clearly as possible and with as little of the writer's opinion as possible.

These young reporters call their "thing," The New Journalism.

They're wrong. They're wrong on two important scores.

The first is that reporting their opinion is more important than reporting the facts. It isn't.

The reason is this:

Our form of government — which is to say the way we live together — is based on the belief that a people can govern themselves. They don't need a dictator. Or a king. They can govern themselves.

However, to do it they need to know the facts. From the facts they can form their own conclusions, make their own opinions, reach their own judgments.

Our way of living together — the form of government under which we rule ourselves — depends on the ability of the voters to get the facts they need to think for themselves.

So supplying the facts as accurately, as objectively as a professional newsman can, is a high calling with tremendous responsibility.

It is far more vital than any reporter or editor expressing his opinion.

Next, The New Journalism isn't new.

All it is, is personal journalism— the same old, button-shoed, chin-whiskered reporting of the days of yellow journalism. Almost all newspapers in those days were the personal opinion of the writer. They weren't really NEWpapers. They were editorials (editorial are opinion; news is a report as clear and clean of opinion as possible).

So today's young reporters who believe they have discovered something new in expressing their opinion ins news stories are merely short of knowledge about journalism's past ... Just as they are also short in paying proper respect to the importance of reporting the facts upon which our people base their judgments.

GOOD NEWS FOR ALL

The rich black soil of America's farmlands produced a harvest in 1973 the likes of which has never been seen before--a healthy sign for the economy and a blessing for the farmer, who is now realizing some of the highest prices in U.S. history.

Since economic stability ultimately hinges upon the success of our agricultural industry, the implications of this situation are far-reaching. One farmer explains it this way, "....if the farmers have it good, then the nation is going to have it good...." He has a point. All things considered, Americans have never experienced such prosperity as now. True, there have been occasional, temporary food shortages, and inflation persistently nips at the heels of the consumer. But our stores are still brimming with well-stocked shelves; and, though the percentage may rise, the average American family devoted only about 15.6 percent of its disposable income for food in 1973.

"As "Time" magazine sees it, "...the improvement in the farmer's lot will probably last for many years. Prospects are strong that world demand for food will continue to grow rapidly, auguring a good return for farmers....Simultaneously, farm output will rise because the government, in a historic and long-overdue policy shift, will no longer pay farmers to hold down production." This is, indeed, good news for our international balance of trade, not to mention the total world economy which leans so heavily upon U.S. agriculture.

Even an industrialized society like the U.S. must acknowledge the significant role free market agriculture plays in maintenance of "the good life." The farm community may have shrunk over the years, but its importance has not.

EVEN PRESIDENT NO MATCH FOR BUREAUCRATS

For all the talk about "the imperial presidency" and the abuse of executive power, the fact of the matter is that a president is to a startling degree at the mercy not only of Congress but of a horde of invisible bureaucrats who are virutally immune to executive discipline.

So says university professor and columnist John P. Roche, who bases the statement on his experience as a speech writer and advisor to Lyndon B. Johnson.

Harry Truman was right when he said "the buck stops here." That is, it is the president's obligation to settle policy. From inside, however, says Roche, "you rapidly learn that the real problem is to get important decisions where they belong: on the desk in the Oval Office."

Stopping the buck at the top "does not call for displays of courage as much as it does for an efficient espionage apparatus to guarantee that key decisions are not being made by invisible bureaucrats, to make sure the buck does not stop someplace else."

The armor of this bureaucracy is civil service tenure, provided by Congress to about 98 per cent of the administrative establishment and originally considered a great reform designed to eliminate the spoils system. Roche discovered that he was one of only about 700 members of the thousands in the Johnson administration whom the President could summarily fire.

The real battle in Washington, he claims, is not between the administration and Congress. "It is between the president and a secret alliance of the legislature and the bureaucracy, who share the common objective of cutting the president down."

It is almost impossible to exaggerate the ingenuity displayed by the bureaucracy in stonewalling a presidential policy, he says. Take the example of the supply of deadly poisons retained by the CIA in defiance of a presidential order.

How could the president have found out about it? The CIA director didn't tell him. By getting one of the invisible men down about five layers to squeal on another?

Actually, says Roche, most episodes of this sort surface because of a personal grudge leading to an anonymous tip to a congressman or journalist.

Watergate, he suggests, while it was an absurd, criminal extreme, was part of a process that goes back to World War II in which presidents have been driven to improvise techniques for control of the administration.

Ironically, in his effort to create the power the textbooks say he had, Richard Nixon set in motion a train of events leading to congressional predominance unmatched in history.

By Victor Riesel

Other People's Billions: NYC Municipal Job Holders' high pay and crooked welfare remain uncut

NEW YORK — There are thousands in this city who can't read or write -- but who can riot. So during ex-Mayor John Lindsay's administration his City Hall borrowed some $50 million to "cool" them. They got ghost jobs. Manpower training for the unemployed, it was called. WPA "work." No riots. The payoff paid off for John Lindsay. The wasted $50 million cash-out item still is in the bankrupt annual budget.

Mind you the tragic illiterates never threatened to riot. City Hall was just buying some sociological -- and political -- insurance. There are scores of such ripoffs, all still in the budget, skyrocketing the squandered millions into a billion here and thre.

For example, there are three, oft-terrorized, frequently "hostaged" city hospitals here which can be closed and not be missed. Everybody admits that. Savings would be $9 million annually.

There are hospital rackets and mismanagement costing this city tens of millions a year. And drug prescription abuse in public hospitals costing $1.5 million a year.

And in the city's 18 municipal hospitals the doctors' patient charting and charging system is so confused, New York actually loses $30 million annually. Up and up and up it goes -- drowned out by official cries for help. Yet these abuses could be wiped out overnight.

But there's a simpler, swifter way to save the city. No politician has dared breathe it: this city has several budgets. No matter how you scramble them, the total payroll costs, including transit, come to $7.5 billion a year. Why not merely cut all pay right across the board?

A 10 per cent wage trim would save $750 million annually. That would hardly make up for a massive indolence and productivity ooze, much of it politically protected. But it would give the city much of what it needs to carry it over -- without defaulting.

And no one need be fired.

Wouldn't it be far better for the city's 263,000 employes to take home a few dollars less than to take home nothing -- or to go on welfare?

And talking about welfare: another one billion dollars could be saved by the city if it withheld its share of this public assistance, income maintenance, cash payouts and administrative costs. Welfare clients would still receive 75 per cent of their current income -- regularly paid by the federal government (50 per cent) and the state (25 per cent).

President Ford was wrong when he asserted that one out of every 10 clients is ineligible. The average ripoff comes to well over 11 per cent. That makes it more than 125,000 who are stealing hundreds of millions of dollars a year.

Well, along comes Police Benevolent Assn. president Ken (Stink City) McFeeley. He shouts that welfare cuts would provoke rioting. And that he would tell his 23,000 cops not to go out into the streets to maintain order and get clobbered. That sounds to me like misplaced militancy, or incitement to desertion or hysterical scare strategy. Since when is sworn duty a sometime thing?

Also this reflects a new-found police elitism. What inspired the police union chief to believe the actual poor are less loyal than cops who constantly threaten job action? And who have manhandled their own leaders when the latter attempted reasonable city negotiations not too long ago.

Further, the 25 per cent cut in welfare would leave a vacuum which could be filled with increased food stamp grants. This should be easy. Just take the food stamps from the ripoff operators. Authentic reports have it that some nine million ineligible persons are stealing (officially receiving) food stamps to which they're obviously not entitled. And that the ripoff cost runs between $500 and $1 billion annually. So the city's welfare clients can be fed, can't they, by taking it from the food stamp thieves. So no one gets hurt but the chiselers.

Thus at least $1.750 billion can be saved in one year -- as can considerable hysteria.

And there's routine municipal employment annual attrition. How much? No one really knows. Who counts? But the estimate runs between 5 and 10 per cent. It's much higher. Especially when a little arithmetic is done on the huge police department and the gargantuan school system (79,000 teachers at the latest full count on July 1, 1973).

Since the city employe's yearly average pay runs $12,000 and there are additional hiring costs to the personnel division, attrition saves at least $315 million annually. Scores of millions more are paid out for consultant fees on assignments which could be handled by the city's own skilled personnel.

None of this need be permanent. Say for a year or two. The 10 per cent pay cut could be covered by script payable in five years. But all this would be the easy way. So would be dipping into the city and state's $15 billion worth of civil service pension funds -- still growing swiftly.

There's no reason for New York City's defaulting -- except the greed of many of the city's entrenched civil servants. Sure the federal government should help -- but not until the city's army of employes prove they're willing to help themselves -- and the welfare clients help wipe out welfare rackets.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON--The FBI has always required its agents to toe the line. The standards are strict, the rules rigid. Agents have been disciplined for accepting a football ticket or a free meal.

Yet top FBI officials haven't always obeyed the regulations that they have imposed on the rank and file.

The late J. Edgar Hoover accepted race-track vacations from Texas tycoon Clint Murchison and used FBI agents to write books for him. His successor, L. Patrick Gray III, took to flying about the country in Air Force planes and staying at fancy hotels.

Now we have learned that the present FBI director, Clarence Kelley, was wined, dined and hosted for a weekend at New York City's posh Waldorf Astoria by the insurance company that underwrites health insurance for FBI employes.

Not only Kelley but two of his deputies, Thomas Jenkins and Thomas Feeney, got the full treatment from Prudential Insurance Company. Their wives were also guests of the company.

Aside from the Waldorf incident, Kelley has kept himself clean. An associate said this was the only conflict of interest that has ever been raised about Kelley.

Although FBI employes aren't supposed to accept such expensive favors from firms with which they do business, the FBI insurance program theoretically is independent of the FBI. The agents run it, however, with Feeney as president and Jenkins a board member.

In explaining the Kelley junket, the FBI said: The primary purpose of the trip was for Prudential executives...to meet with Mr. Kelley and key members of the (health insurance program). During this meeting, items of mutual interest...were discussed."

The FBI said Prudential didn't pay travel expenses for the FBI party, only hotel and related bills. Kelley's transportation costs were picked up by the FBI because he consulted with his New York office head during the visit.

Far more flagrant were the abuses of that stern old disciplinarian, J. Edgar Hoover and his sidekick, Clyde Tolson. Here are a few examples we have obtained from sworn statements and old-time FBI sources:

--Hoover and Tolson used an FBI inspector, Albert Gunsser, to fill out their tax forms and sometimes to advise them on their oil investments in Texas, Louisiana and Kansas. Gunsser must have been an investment genius. For Tolson left an estate approaching $750,000, much of it bequeathed to him by Hoover.

--At one time, Tolson was drawing $4,000 a month from oil investments. After he retired in 1972, recalls former FBI bigwig John Mohr, "people in the oil business would call (Tolson) on the phone and tell him, 'We've got a good one going here, do you want to get in on it, Clyde?' And I guess he would get in on it."

--Despite his wealth, the aged Tolson demaned $4,500 from the J. Edgar Hoover Foundation for some books Hoover had willed him. When the foundation's director complained bitterly, Tolson retorted: "Pay the $4,500 or forget it."

--When Tolson's mother was sick, he didn't hire nurses with his own money but assigned a special agent "who spent a great deal of time taking care of Clyde's mother." The agent's wife also helped with the nursing.

--Tolson excluded from his will a nephew whom he had installed as an FBI agent. The nephew upset Tolson by running off with a woman from a local police department, Mohr alleged. Yet Tolson used an artifice, himself, to stay at the FBI long after his health had failed.

--A bachelor, Tolson dated a model in New York City "a long time ago" and frequented race tracks where he had a "special arrangement," Mohr said.

--Tolson had his erstwhile aide, Mohr, draw up a series of wills and codicils. Mohr wrote himself in for a $26,000 legacy plus perhaps an equal amount in executor's fees. For a lawyer to write himself into a client's will is a breach of legal ethics. Mohr explained that he was acting for Tolson as a friend, not as his lawyer, and that Tolson specifically ordered him to write himself into the will.

Mohr denied emphatically, meanwhile, that he took the mysterious "Hoover papers" out of the late FBI chief's old house where they reportedly had been stored. All he removed, said Mohr, were "several boxes of spoiled wind," a half-dozen boxes of trash and "15 or 20 jars of honey" which he said were "thrown out."

He also took some other innocent items, he said, including some "loose papers" which Mohr said he turned over to his attorney for safekeeping.

PURINA POSTSCRIPT--In an earlier column, we reported that the Humane Society of the United States found cats used by Purina for its commercials were from a facility where mistreatment of animals occurred.

We can now report that Purina is no longer using the facility and has taken measures to make sure its cats are as well cared for as they look on TV. The firm avows that it has "initiated periodical unannounced inspections of all facilities" used for its TV and other ads, a practice that other firms might well follow to insure humane care of TV animals.

March of Dimes organization outlines coming objectives

COLUMBIA—Volunteers from the SeMo and Bootheel chapters of the March of Dimes attended a state volunteer meeting here Oct. 23-24. Among other subjects, delegates heard about recent medical advances to help insure that babies are born healthier.

The main purpose was to outline what initiatives the voluntary health organization will take in the coming year. Plans for the March of Dimes annual January fund drive were discussed, and award presentations were presented for distinguished volunteer service.

The goal of the National Foundation March of Dimes is the prevention of birth defects, the nation's number one child health problem. One of the foundation's major aims is to improve the outcome of pregnancy--that is, prevent miscarriages and stillbirths and ensure that the baby is born healthy and the mother survives in good health.

March of Dimes supported researchers study ways to further these goals. Contributions to the March of Dimes also go to improve prenatal and perinatal care, genetic counseling for people with a history of birth defects and educational efforts for pregnant women and parents-to-be.

Additional volunteers are needed by the March of Dimes to make these goals possible. Persons interested in serving may call telephone number 264-2409 for further information on how you can help in the fight against birth defects.

Among those attending the state meeting were: Mrs. Beth Filer of Marble Hill, Mrs. Don Sauer of Perryville, Mrs. Bill Wellborn of Sikeston and Tom Stecher of Cape Girardeau, Mothers' March chairwomen; Mrs. Charles Sullins of Sikeston, campaign director; Karen Borneman and Bill O'Connors of Delta walkathon committee; and Louise Miller of Scott City, executive director of the SeMo and Bootheel chapters.

Bernie mayor clarifies action

BERNIE — The purpose of the recently named cemetery board of directors is to oversee city expenditures involving the Bernie Cemetery, according to Mayor R. B Woods.

The cemetery is owned by the Bernie Cemetery Association, and the city has no plans to take over the cemetery, Woods said.

He said some people thought the city's action meant the city would assume control of the cemetery, which is not the case at all.

When applied to animals, the word Jack means inferior, small or male.

Soybeans are state's number one cash crop

By MARY CIRIELLO
Consumer consultant

"Up until 40 years ago soybeans were harvested by hand. People threw the soybean stalks on a meshed wire that was stretched over the mule-drawn wagon bed. Then they beat the stalks until the bens fell through," says Jack Tipton, veteran soybean producer from southeast Missouri's bootheel, where 30 per cent of the state's 100,000,000 bushels of soybeans are grown annually.

He says people used to harvest only a couple acres a year; just enough to use forthe next year's planting. "In the early days of the industry," he explains, "soybeans were grown mainly for conservation purposes; for the nitrogen they put into the soil so other crops would thrive."

The early days of the soybean industry, however, are not so early by other crop's standards. Although the first recorded history of soybeans dates to 2000 B.C. in the Orient, soybeans were not introduced in the United States until 1804.

In Missouri soybeans emerged from a minor crop in 1940 to the state's number one cash crop by 1973 and today are grown on more cultivated acres than any other crop. In 1974, the 4.5 million acres of soybeans produced a crop valued at 750 million dollars.

Tipton, president of the Missouri Soybean Association, attributes the soybean industry's rapid growth to modern equipment, technology and soybean's versatility in filling nutritional needs in domestic and especially world markets. Missouri ranks fifth nationally in soybean exports.

Soybeans come closest of any vegetable to matching meat's quality and quantity of amino acids, the building blocks of protein. Containing little fat and no cholesterol, one-half cup cooked mature soybeans provide the iron equivalent of three eggs, the calcium equivalent of about one-half cup of milk and almost the protein equivalentof two ounces of meat.

Along with soy flour and grits, food technologists have developed textured soy proteins, concentrates and islotes. All are valuable as extenders for ground and processed meat products.

Soy derivatives are not only being used as ingredients but many leading food companies now are using a process which dissolves soy protein into filaments, coagulates the filaments and creates fibers called "tow" which are almost without color or taste. The two fibers are spun like textile fibers into foods which look and taste like almost any food: Scallops, chicken, pecans, pork, beef and bacon strips which have almost no shrinkage, unlike bacon from pork.

Because of the economic and nutritional value of soybeans, the development of soybean based food products has been lucrative to food manufacturers. It holds much promise for the future. Missouri is the fourth largest producer of soybeans in the United States but unfortunately little if any food processing is done to the beans before they leave the state. There is hope that there will be more soybean processing within the state which would provide a boon to the economy.

Add a boon to the nutritional content of your diet and enjoy some of the newest foods on the market by trying some of the soy-based foods on the market.

Forms of soy oil include margarine which is generally higher in polyunsaturated fats than fat from animal sources. Forms of soy protein available include meat analogs such as sausage; bacon; packaged ground beef-soy protein mixture which is a combination of 75 per cent ground beef and 25 per cent soy protein mixed together; dehydrated soy protein to mix with ground beef; and packaged dehydrated soy protein to mix with diced or chipped chicken, ham, tuna or other meats.

According to the Food Protein Council, a ground beef-soy protein mixture results in juicier pattie and loaves, frequently has better flavor than those made from meat alone because texturized soy protein absorbs meat juices. They also report that the ground beef-soy protein mixture usually contains less fat and may be less expensive than regular ground beef.

Fortify your favorite meatball, taco or meat loaf recipes by removing ½ cup (four ounces) of each pound of ground beef your recipe calls for and substitute ½ cup reconstituted texturized vegetable protein (TVP) granules.

PARTY MEATBALLS
ON PICKS

1 egg
½ cup water
1 lb. ground beef (remove ½ cup and add ½ cup reconstituted TVP granules)
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
½ cup bread crumbs
2 tsp. salt
1½ tsp. chili powder
1 tsp. barbecue sauce
1 Tbsp. chili sauce

Mix ingredients and shape into one-inch balls. Bake in shallow pan at 350 degrees 10 to 12 minutes. Serve on toothpicks. Yield: 60 to 70.

Delta Center offers sample questions from CLEP exams

PORTAGEVILLE — Sample questions for four of the college level examinations in medical technology are available for the small sum of the cost of xeroxed copies. Subjects in which these questions are available are in the fields of clinical chemistry, hematology, immunohematology (blood banking) and microbiology.

The examinations in the first three subjects mentioned are designed specifically to measure knowledge normally gained in courses offered during the clinical portion of four-year medical technology programs. The examination in microbiology is designed primarily to measure the material normally found in introductory college-level microbiology; however, this test is related to medical technology in that students in the field take introductory microbiology as a prerequisite for more advanced work. More detailed content descriptions of each examination follow. These will help you to determine the appropriateness of each test for your students.

Since courses with the same four titles are offered in two-year as well as four-year medical laboratory training programs, all four examinations are expected to be useful for both programs. In accordance with college board policy for all CLEP examinations, individual institutions make their own decisions about how they will use and interpret test scores.

Although there is wide variation in the difficulty of individual questions on the examinations, most are intended to be only moderately difficult. It is not expected that people taking the test will be able to answer every question.

The examinations were prepared to serve people who may have learned in a variety of ways. For instance, people trained as medical corpsmen in the armed services may well have mastered the material equivalent to one of more of these academic courses. Many people who work in medical laboratories possess considerable knowledge, gathered through experience, which has gone unrecognized. Although these peopel may well have excellent command of the principles, concepts and facts to move ahead in the field of medical technology, they have had little opportunity to obtain academic credit for their knowledge.

Copies of the sample questions may be obtained at the University of Missouri Delta Center, Portageville, by contacting Kathryn Kinnard, at telephone number, 379-5431.

Warm, humid bathrooms are the perfect breeding ground for mold, mildew and odors, says Lynn Raasch, consumer information specialist for a major wax company. To win the battle against them, she suggests a nongritty spray such as bathroom cleaner. It will clean all bathroom surfaces, replacing mold and mildew with a sparkling shine.

Aged parents want to kick son out

Dear Ann Landers: Our 27-year-old son is a drug addict. He lives at home and refuses to work. The rugs and furniture are full of cigaret holes and his father and I are afraid he'll burn the house down one of these nights -- us with it.

This boy has been on and off methadone for several months and can't remember his own name. The doctors have given him prescriptions for Valium plus a lot of other stuff. The expense is breaking us. Our son has money on his person but keeps asking us to pay for everything.

My husband is sick and wants to retire. Where are the laws in the country anyway? Why must aged parents be forced to keep a son who is in such terrible shape and makes their life a living hell? Lord knows we deserve some peace in our old age. How can we get it? -- Helpless And Miserable

Dear Friends: Let's start with the laws in this country. Nowhere does it say parents must keep a 27-year-old son in their home. You could have kicked him out legally six years ago. Maybe that's where you made your first mistake.

There are many drug abuse clinics in the U.S. and Canada and your son should be in one of them. I urge you to call the County Mental Health Society and ask for specific instructions. You are only as "Helpless" as you want to be.

Dear Ann Landers: Bravo for "It's Over Robert Redford." She's got my vote! It's high time the tables were turned. Usually it's the woman who pays for having an affair with a married man. Almost always SHE gets tossed aside after he's had his fling.

My story is a lulu. Against my better judgment, I kept company with a married man whose wife was an invalid. He kept telling me he had to stay with her because he'd feel like a heel leaving a handicapped woman. Every time we were together he swore he loved me madly. I admit I fell for him like a ton of coal. He was one of the most attractive men I'd ever met in all my life.

Six months ago his wife passed away suddenly, from, of all things, the flu! Though he repeatedly declared his undying love for me, his phone calls became fewer and his "out of town" business trips became more frequent. I telephoned his home early one evening to cancel a date. To my utter surprise I learned that the female who answered his phone had been living with him for several months. He "loved" her, too, and SHE also thought he was "out of town." (Obviously he had a third dame in the woodwork.)

I did not cancel my date but went t o his home instead. Number Two and I put his blankets on sideways and poured salt between the sheets. We hung the pictures upside down and the potted plants looked splendid in his shower. We mismatched his socks, rolled them neatly as if properly paired and replaced them in his dresser drawer. Then we sprinkled itching powder in his shorts. I kept my date with him that evening and we had a lovely time. I said good night at my door.

Number Two moved out the following day and neigher one of us has heard from him since. -- Got Even In Canoga Park

Dear Got Even: Even though you live in L.A., you took Chicago Mayor Daley's advice: "Don't get mad – get even."

Thanks for the lulu.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers's booklet, " Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Dogs are out for revenge

By DALE FORBIS

The score was 41-0 and, although you haven't heard those specific numbers mentioned, you can be sure that they're on the minds of every Sikeston football player as they head to Poplar Bluff for the season's final game. Those 41 points were Poplar Bluff's margin of victory in last year's last game. With several turnovers giving the Mules and fullback Scott Harrell the football on the Dogs' side of the fifty countless times in the first half, Sikeston lost the last vestige of pride that could be salvaged from a 1-8 season -- the right to say that the final won-lost record was deceiving. Any such remarks and the skeptical listener would just point to that 41-0 score and fail to hear anything else said. It won't be easy, but there would be no sweeter victory than a season-ender over the up and down Mules of coach Tom Telle.

By dropping two conference games to underdogs Cape and Charleston the Mules are now a longshot for the conference title, after being ranked among the state's top ten, most of the season. A team of marvelous talent still remains, but motivating those footballers is a tough job for coach Telle.

"It's definitely tough," responded Telle to an inquiry about emotion. "After losing to Cape, we really let down."

Now the 7-2 Mules take on a much-improved Sikeston team. Much-improved is an over used, but accurate description of the 1975 version of the Bulldgos.

"They've got a good offense," says Telle. "Their defense is aggressive and I can tell by looking at a program that they're a lot bigger this year."

Hard work in the offseason added muscle to the lanky Bulldog frames. Blessed with what is mostly a hardworking group of seniors, coach Terry Smith has produced a winning ball team in his third year. Most football people in the district thought the veteran coach would accomplish the return of respectability, but nearly all thought the days of winning were still a year or so off. Not so. With the community and student body taking the team to their hearts, it became like a family affair. Nineteen seniors play their final game against the Mules and, win or lose, it'll be a sad time for those 19. However, they will have the good memories and the knowledge that they were instrumental in putting the Sikeston program back on its feet.

The Mules, meanwhile, are trying to end their season with a win and give themselves at least an outside shot at a conference title in a frenzied Northern division race. Although Jackson and Charleston would have to lose at least once in the next two weeks for the Mules to tie them (and Sikeston) for the top spot, that result would be much preferrable to a 3-3 conference finish after being ranked as high as third among the state's 4-A teams just a few short weeks ago.

The Mules have a good offense. They have averaged near 30 points per game and managed to score 27, while losing to Charleston last week. The defense, which was so tough earlier in the year, has relaxed since the loss to Cape. But, the Mules still have Mike Moss, the finest among an outstanding crop of runners in the district.

"Mike Moss is as good as any back I've ever seen," says Sikeston coach Terry Smith.

"I think that Greg Johnson at Charleston is just as good," he went on, "and there are the two good runners at Jackson and our own Wilder and Beanf. It's just a good year for runners."

However, don't overlook the Poplar Bluff passing attack. Tracy Edington calls the signals for the Mules and the senior does his job well. His throwing was outstanding against Charleston.

"We knew they'd stack to stop our running," explains Telle. "Edington has thrown very well all year."

Operating out of a slot-I formation, Edington has receivers Jeff Jones, Steve James, Phil Braden and Mark Harrell to throw to. Moss is joined in the backfield by fullback David Webb.

A tough job faces the Bulldogs. If they beat the Mules they will have defeated the conference's largest team in size and, probably, talent. Poplar Bluff has already blasted one undefeated 4-A squad (House Springs- Northwest) by a score of 46-0. The Bulldogs won't have Charleston's speed to chase Moss down from behind if he gets wide. But, they will have the desire to give a good effort and hit the talented Mules hard.

"We just stood around against Jackson last week," said Smith, explaining defensive difficulties in a 14-0 loss.

Sikeston won't just stand around against Poplar Bluff. They will hustle and hit like there isn't any tomorrow. There is one, though. The Bulldogs of 1975 have given the Sikeston fans a promising one.

Hess is North's top passer

Charleston's Kevin Hess has assumed the leadership in passing yardage in the Northern Division, according to this week's SEMO Football Conference statistics, as compiled by The Daily Standard.

Hess, who completed five passes for 85 yards in the Bluejays' victory over Poplar Bluff last week, moved ahead of Kennett quarterback Randy Baker, who sat out much of the game against Cape Central and did not complete a pass.

Poplar Bluff tailback Mike Moss still holds a commanding lead in both the rushing and scoring statistics. Moss carries a hefty 9.3 yard-per-carry rushing average, despite being shut down by Charleston. His 128 total points are tops in the area.

In the Southern Division, East Prairie's Richard Thurmond continued toward what might lead to a possible repeat selection to the 2-A all state team by hauling in seven passes last week. Thurmond now has caught 30 aerials, eight of them for touchdowns.

The Eagles' Danny Johnson still leads the south in rushing, while teammate Benny Bradley is the leading scorer. Caruthersville quarterback Audie Tarpley remains the South's leading passer.

In the Bootheel Division, Illmo-Scott City star Steve Hanschen cracked the 1,000 yard mark and leads the league in rushing with 1,007. Steve Cox of Doniphan is not far behind with 957 yards. Hanschen is also the leading scorer with 78 points, although Doniphan's Bill Jenkins is only two points behind. Jenkins is the conference's top passer with 535 yards, while South Pemiscot's James Cooper leads the league in receptions with 16.

SPORTS CORNER

Although the varsity's 6-3 record indicates a great improvement in the Sikeston program, it isn't the whole story. Despite the fact that 19 seniors leave after this year and vacate 13 offensive and defensive positions, the future is as bright as it has been for Sikeston football during the past ten years. The 8th grade, freshman and junior varsity football teams combined this past fall for a collective 17-3-2 record, promising a bright tomorrow for Sikeston football by supplying the varsity coaches with an abundance of talent.

Sikeston's junior varsity finished with a record of 6-1-2. After opening with a tie against East Prairie and a loss to Jackson,the jayvee won six of their last seven games. Only a 14-14 tie with Poplar Bluff marred the record. The team was coached by Tom Horton and Al Holmes.

The junior varsity's defense was its strongest point.

"There are a lotof hard hitters out there," said varsity coach Terry Smith, speaking of a defense that racked up six shutouts in nine games and didn't allow a point in the last 14 quarters. Tailback Glynn Felton led jayvee scorers with eight touchdowns and thee conversions for 54 points, despite starting only the last five games. Quarterback Joe Davis scored 44 on six t-d's and four conversions.

The junior varsity scored 142 points and allowed 32.

Coaches George Hale and Martin Bass enjoyed the fruits of the rejuvanated junior high program, enroute to a 5-2 record.

The season opened with a 20-0 loss to Jackson, but the team played well the rest of the way, losing only to Poplar Bluff 14-8. Cape was defeated by the freshmen for the first time in ten years.

A stable of good runners, a strong offensive and defensive line and pretty good size were the earmarks of the Bullpups. The team scored 126 points and gave up 62.

Coach Mike Foster's eighth grade team became the first undefeated Sikeston team in any sport at any level for several years. The junior high team waltzed through six games easily, marking up a 6-0 record and benefitted a g reat deal from a new little league football organization started in Sikeston a year before.

No opponent scored more than once against the most prolific scoring team in the Sikeston program. Marking up 140 points in six games, the eighth- graders averaged 23.3 points per game.

Size and enthusiasm were prevalent on the undefeated squad. Several of the team members approached the 160-180 pound range. The squad was one of the largest in numbers, too, with more than 50 members.

Congratulations are in order for the hard-working men who taught these footballers during the past season. Sikeston's coaches are: Terry Smith, Jim Graham, Murray Sullivan, Al Holmes, Tom Horton, Mike Foster, Martin Bass and George Hale.

Congratulations are also in order for the 19 seniors who conclude a successful season at Poplar Bluff. These seniors of '76 have given their younger teammates a step forward to a brighter future for Sikeston on the gridiron. The seniors are: Quarterback Ron Priday (12), Running Back Mike Lambert (22), Dog Man Mike Hamra (24), Safety Curtis McKinney (40), Fullback Scott Scherer (41), End Jeff Baker (42), Linebacker Rob Newman (44), End Joe Green (45), Defensive end Doug Reynolds (53), Center Jeff Minner (00), Guard Bob Marshall (62), Tackle Fred Gilliland (63), Defensive Tackle Mark Sullivan (69), Defensive tackle Bill Busby (770), Tackle Wade Barber (72), Guard Mike Bohannon (78), End Chris Alberts (87), Defensive end Rodney Littleton (88), and Guard Keith Dill (93).

Dr. Lamb

Diet secondary in gout

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband has had the gout very bad for about five years now. He is on Allopurinol, 100 mg twice a day, and has Butazolidin to take when he does have an attack.

I know that diet is the main factor, however, I have spent many hours trying to make a basic list of foods you can eat sometimes, never, etc.

Medical books break it down into low-in-fat, proteins, free from purine, but I don't understand which foods have what. I'd like to know where I could find a basic, simple list that would list the foods and if you should or should not have them.

DEAR READER — Your problem is that diet is no longer considered so important in the treatment of gout, at least to lower the blood uric acid level. You can do that with medicines. You need a basic understanding of gout, which you can get by sending 50 cents for The Health Letter number 2-3, Gout, Uric Acid. Just write me for it in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing.

That issue of The Health Letter will explain uric acid to you, how you get acute attacks of gout, what you can do to prevent them and the complications of gout.

Uric acid forms a salt and crystals of these settle in the joint space and cause the typical acute attack of gout. You are not correct in saying that diet is the most important thing. Gout is a metabolic disease, just as surely as diabetes or thyroid disease. People are born with the tendency to form uric acid, and there is a familial tendency, regardless of what you eat.

The uric acid is a side product of forming nucleic acids for the nuclei of your many body cells. The nucleic acid formation to make new cells uses purines. This is where purines come in, and the nuclei of cells are rich in purine.

The standard gout diet limits the ingestion of purine in the diet (but I hasten to add eliminating purine entirely will not prevent high uric acid levels in a patient with gout). High purine foods are those with lots of nuclei in their cells, specifically organ meats such as liver, sweetbreads, kidneys and brains. Other high purine foods are beans, anchovies, peas, cauliflower, eggplant and sardines. Milk does not contain body cells, so milk and milk products are purine free.

In addition to these food items, a person with gout should be on a diet that prevents obesity and helps prevent heart and vascular disease. Here is where you need to use a diet that is low in fat and cholesterol and doesn't provide too many calories. Gout patients are particularly prone to heart disease, so this is a wise move.

While on the subject of obesity, may thin people have gout. The obese individual should not go on a crash diet. That is one way to precipitate an acute attack of gout. As you destroy those body cells from unwise dieting you release purines from their nuclei and increase the uric acid level.

The other dietary precaution is to avoid alcoholic beverages, particularly champagnes and heavy wines and beer.

What's the law?

The case of the flirty legal fellows

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

During a heated court battle, there was more ham in the courtroom than in most butcher shops. The two opposing lawyers, exhibiting every known emotion, employed every theatrical gimmick they could think of in trying their case.

In fact, the judge even suspected that one of them had been stooped to throwing romantic glances at one or more of the female jurors. Consequently, before the jurors left the courtroom to consider their verdict, the judge warned them:

"Now remember," he said, "stage play acting and flirting with jurors by the lawyers should not be allowed to influence your decision. While flirting may be flattering, it's not evidence."

In due course, the jury returned its verdict and the losing attorney demanded a new trial on appeal.

"I was accused of being a flirt by the trial judge," he complained. "And since nobody likes a flirt, the jury was predjudiced against me in arriving at their decision. Therefore, I'm entitled to a new trial."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant the attorney a new trial because of the flirtatious accusation..

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the complaining lawyer had not been predjudiced since the trial judge did not mention which attorney, if either, had been flirting. What's more, the judge noted, if the complaining attorney was innocent, the jury knew it and no harm was done. On the other hand, if he was guilty, he had no cause to complain.

More people watching, but fewer TV sets on

NEW YORK (AP) — Each year the national television audience increases. But something curious may be happening in viewing patterns this season. It seems that fewer TV sets are on, but more people are watching them.

Question: Does this indicate that we've reached the point where television's bubble finally has burst and viewers are turning their sets off more this season than in past years?

"I would hesitate to think that anyone could draw that conclusion," says Mike Weinblatt, NBC-TV's executive vice president. "I think it's probably much too premature to know exactly what has happened. But I don't think people's tastes and interests change that dramatically."

Still, NBC is so puzzled by the paradoxical drop in set usage and the rise in viewing that its top research man, Bill Rubens, is closely examining the audience-sampling methods of the A.C. Nielsen ratings company to see if anything's been changed from past years.

Rubens says the number of homes in which TV sets are on during the prime evening hours dropped by four per cent in the first seven weeks of the current season, compared to the same period last year.

At the same time, he says, "the proportion of people viewing is up by one per cent" to about 81,470,000 souls watching each night.

"So there are more people viewing, according to Nielsen, in fewer homes," he says.

Weinblatt frankly admits "that at the moment we're unable to explain it." He says the number of viewers and sets in use in homes usually "follow the same trends." When one figure goes up or down, so does the other.

"So to the research people, this (new development) becomes inexplicable when more people are watching in fewer homes," he says.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, November 7, the 311th day of 1975. There are 54 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1917, the Bolsheviks overthrew the short-lived Kerensky government in Russia, and Nikolai Lenin became the new head of government.

On this date:

In 1659, the Pyrenees were fixed as the boundary between France and Spain, ending a 24-year war.

In 1811, the Shawnee Indians were defeated in the Battle of Tippecanoe in Indiana.

In 1885, the Canadian Pacific Railroad was completed.

In 1918, a false report that Germany had accepted World War One peace terms set off great excitement.

In 1942, the Allied invasion of North Africa began in World War Two.

In 1944, Franklin Roosevelt was elected to an unprecedented fourth term.

Ten years ago: The Soviet Union displayed three new compact, highly maneuverable rocket systems at a military parade in Moscow's Red Square.

Five years ago: A 19-year-old Canadian student told an inquest in Montreal that he and three other men had abducted Labor Minister Pierre Laporte of Quebec, who later was slain.

One year ago: Following elections, the Democrats had a two-thirds majority in the House of Representatives and three-fifths in the Senate.

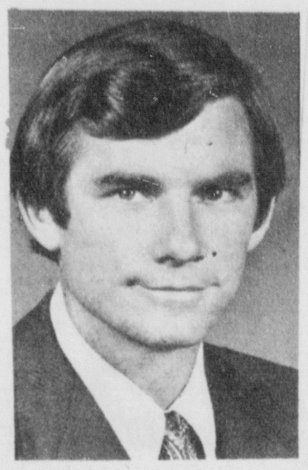
First Methodist to host seminar



Dr. Tex Sample

First United Methodist Church, Highway 61 North, will host a three-session seminar study Saturday night and Sunday on the subject, "What Is A Redemptive Church?"

Dr. Tex Sample, a professor at Saint Paul School of Theology in Kansas City, will be the study leader.

The first session is scheduled from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Saturday in the church social hall, following a hamburger supper at 6:30 p.m. for the convenience of persons planning to attend. The second session at 9:30 a.m. Sunday will meet during the Sunday School hour, and the last session will meet from 2 to 3:30 p.m. Sunday afternoon.

The Rev. Dr. Sample received a doctor of philosophy degree in 1964 in the field of social ethics and sociology of religion at the Boston University School of Theology. He pastored churches in Mississippi and Massachusetts for eight years before joining the faculty of St. Paul School of Theology, where he serves as faculty representative to the board of trustees and helped design the doctor of ministry program.

Dr. Arthur C. Fulbright, pastor, says all persons interested in increasing the effectiveness of churches are welcome to participate in the three sessions of the weekend seminar study.

A questionnaire checked by the membership of First Methodist showed much interest in such questions as: What are the tests of a living church? Where is the Kingdom of God today and how does the church live in it? What does it mean to be a redemptive church? How can the church help persons to make God real in their lives? The Rev. Dr. Sample's service as consultant to a large number of church, community, business and governmental organizations gives him a broad background of experience from which to draw as leader of the study, the Rev. Dr. Fulbright stated.

The church planning committee hopes many persons from other churches will attend part or all of these discussions, thereby enriching the study for all.

Wheels parade to be held Saturday

A citywide wheels parade, sponsored by First Assembly of God Church to promote a Kids Krusade beginning Sunday, is scheduled Saturday at 10 a.m. Participants in the parade may ride a unicycle, bicycle, tricycle, minibike or motorcycle. No cars will be allowed, and all motorized vehicles—minibikes, motorcycles, etc.—must be properly licensed and driven by a driver with the motorcycle license.

The parade will be preceded by decorating and judging for the best decorated. Cycles may be decorated at the starting point at 9 a.m. or may be decorated prior to arrival. Judging will commence promptly at 9:45 a.m. in the parking lot at First Assembly of God, 306 S. Kingshighway.

Cash awards for the best decorated cycles will be $5 for first, $3 for second and $2 for third. The awards will be presented at the conclusion of the parade at approximately noon.

The parade will begin at the corner of South Kingshighway and East Kathleen Avenue and proceed south on Kingshighway to Gladys Street, west on Gladys to Scott Street, south on Scott to Ruth Street, west on Ruth to South West Street, south on South West to Agnes Street, west on Agnes to Branum Avenue, south on Branum to Murray Lane, the halfway point. The parade will then proceed east on Murray Lane to South Prairie Street, then north on Prairie to Kathleen and west on Kathleen to the parking lot at First Assembly of God for the presentation of the awards.

The parade will be escorted by the Sikeston Police Department.

The Kids Krusade Sunday through Friday nights will feature gospel ventriloquist Tim Meyers of Jefferson City in services from 7 to 8:30 nightly.

Mass celebrated at youth gathering

Eight area priests participated in celebration of mass Sunday during a half-day gathering of Catholic youth at the Sikeston National Guard Armory. Participating in the mass, from left, are the Rev. Ray Kunkel of St. Ambrose Catholic Church in Chaffee, the Rev. Mark Binder of St. Mary's Cathedral in Cape Girardeau, the Rev. Oscar Lukefahr of St. Vincent's in Cape Girardeau, the Rev. Robert Schumacher of St. Francis Xavier in Sikeston, the Rev. Dan Hirtz of St. Mary's in Cape Girardeau, the Rev. John Lovelle of Sacred Heart in Poplar Bluff, the Rev. Richard Rolwing of Guardian Angel in Oran and the Rev. Michael McDevitt of St. Ambrose in Chaffee. Other priests present for the program, titled "Getting Together '75", were the Revs. Woody Baker of St. Denis Catholic Church in Benton and the Rev. Francis Donovan of St. Lawrence in New Hamburg. About 300 youths from as far north as Jackson and as far south and west as Portageville and Poplar Bluff, participated in events which included rap sessions in the afternoon, celebration of mass, a buffet dinner and dance.

2 youths to lead services at Miner

Two young men, who announced decisions to enter full-time Christian service during revival services last month at Miner Baptist Church, will take their first steps in that direction by filling positions of leadership during Sunday's services.

Jimmy Matthews, who plans to begin study for the ministry, will preach his first sermon during the 10:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. worship services, and Bob McReynolds, who plans to become a full-time minister of music, will lead the singing. The youth group of the church will be in charge of both services.

Matthews, a sophomore at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau, will fill the pulpit in the absence of the Rev. Grady Etheridge, pastor, who is conducting revival services ending Sunday at Kilbourne, Ill.

Both Matthews and McReynolds plan to enroll at Southwest Baptist College in Bolivar next semester to begin training for their newly chosen careers.

Matthews is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Matthews, 221 Greer St., and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Ben O. Matthews, 609 Elm St. McReynolds is the son of Bob McReynolds, 807 Pine St., and Mrs. Mona Dement, 911 Crescent Drive.

Ventriloquist to lead Kids

Tim Meyers, a gospel ventriloquist from Jefferson City, will conduct a citywide Kids Krusade from 7 to 8:30 Sunday through Friday night at First Assembly of God Church, 306 S. Kingshighway.

One of America's finest ventriloquists, Meyers features a family of puppets each night of the crusade. He has Bert & Ernie & Cookie Monster of Sesame Street; Cecil the talking donkey; Pepe, the dancing marionette; the Mad Professor; Fluffy, the cuddly rabbit; Rubin and Marco Polo; and many more.

He is best known, however, for his life-size dummy named Denny, who seems so real you begin talking to him. Denny shakes hands, raises his eyebrows, turns his head, blinks and winks at the girls.

Meyers—Uncle Tim to most kids—calls the puppets his Barn Yard Gang, as he carries them around the country with a portable barn.

Uncle Tim is 25 years old and travles with his wife Barbara who helps him in all of their Kids Krusades. Tim is the brother of the Rev. Len Meyers, associate pastor at First Assembly of God and attended Central Bible College in Springfield and Zion Bible Institute in Rhode island.

Churches growing in India

Christian churches are growing in India despite discrimination Christians often face from government officials, the Rev. Anderson Kwankin of Agra, India, told the Sikeston Lions Club at its noon meeting Wednesday.

The Rev. Mr. Kwankin said the discrimination is not the fault of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi. He said the problem arises with lower level government officers who ignore Christians when it comes time to hand out government aid.

Even so, the Rev. Mr. Kwankin stated, the number of Christians in India is constantly growing as people convert from the Hindu religion. Hindis account for 85 per cent of the population and Christians for only 2.5 per cent.

The Rev. Mr. Kwankin was in Sikeston to participate in a New World Mission program which began Sunday and ended Thursday night at Wesley United Methodist Church.

Even though they are discriminated against, Christians have a good reputation in India, he said.

The mission hospital at Agra is always full because of its reputation for good medical care. Christian schools and colleges are also highly regarded, the Rev. Mr. Kwankin said.

He said he knew of several Hindu girls who recently married Christian men. When he asked them why they chose Christian husbands, they said they did so because they had heard that Christians made good husbands.

The Rev. Mr Kwankin said he does not agree with all of Prime Minister Gandhi's policies, but at least one good thing — control of inflation — has come from the government's emergency rule.

He said hunger and starvation are not regular features of the country, only during bad weather when there is too little or too much rain.

Agra, where the Rev. Mr. Kwankin lives, is the site of the Taj Mahal.

Dr. Fulbright include membership in the Order of St. Luke of the United Methodist Church, Masons, Scottish Rite, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled American Veterans, the Sikeston Lions Club and the Missouri American Legion Back to God Department. THE BIBLE
No. 212. Job Declares His Innocence

Job listened carefully to the speech of Eliphaz, and then declared his innocence and begged for death: "Oh that I might have my request; and that God would grant me the thing that I long for! Even that it would please God to destroy me; that he would let loose his hand, and cut me off!" (Job 6:8-9)

Then Job sternly rebuked his friends for surmising that he had been false to them or to God.

"How forcible are right words! but what doth your arguing reprove? Do ye imagine to reprove words, and the speeches of one that is desperate, which are as wind? Yea, ye overwhelm the fatherless, and ye dig a pit for your friend. Now therefore be content; look upon me: for it is evident unto you if I lie. Return, I pray you, let it not be iniquity; yea, return again, my righteousness is in it. Is there iniquity in my tongue? Cannot my taste discern perverse things?" (Job 6:25-30)

Newest Insulation System Cuts Costly Heating Bill

If you're thinking of building a new home you may be able to reduce heating and cooling costs as much as 2/3 by buying the New Highlander Home from Galemore Instant Housing featuring the new simple wood framing system.

Most homes today are built using 2x4 wood wall if frameing, with studs spaced 16" apart. The new wall framing system uses 2x6 wood studs at 24" intervals This allows the cavity between the studs to be filled with six inches of insulation rather than the usual 3½". The Ceiling of the house can be filled with 8" rather than the customary 6 inches. This is double the insulation needed or required by F.H.A. standards. How much will this new system save YOU?

Heating and cooling cost of the conventionally insulated homes were $362. per year. But into the wood framing system home only $142 per year. This ammounted to a savings of $220. or nearly 2/3 lower. Over 12 years that ammounts to the price of a compact car.

In a wood framing home the wood framing requires 24% less energy for Heating and 18% less energy for Air Conditioning than comparable structures.

IF YOU'RE INTERESTED IN SAVING MONEY ON HEATING AND AIR CONDITIONING BILLS THEN YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF TO SEE THE LEADER IN SERVING THE PUBLIC WITH SAVING IDEAS

2 damage suits filed

BENTON — Damages totaling $370,000 are sought in two suits involving traffic accidents which were filed Monday and Tuesday in Scott County Circuit Court.

The larger suit, seeking $220,000, was filed Tuesday by R. V. Bowers and Sherry Bowers against Mary L. Schumachher.

The suit contends that on Sept. 30 Mrs. Schumacher negligently backed onto West Malone Avenue in Sikeston into the path of a motorcycle driven by Bowers, causing the vehicles to collide.

As a result of the accident, the suit states that Bowers received ruptured internal organs, multiple fractures to the face and left foot, whiplash injuries and nerve and muscle injuries to his back.

The suit also states that the injuries have caused Bowers to lose rest and sleep, also the strength, use and function of his injured limbs and organs and that he has incurred expenses and will continue to have medical expense since the injuries are permanent and progressive.

Bowers asks $200,000 in damages for his injuries.

In count two of the suit Sherry Bowers, his wife, states that the injuries to her husband have caused her to lose the society, consortium, companionship, love, affection and supoport of her husband.

She seeks damages in the amount of $20,000.

In a suit filed Monday, Betty Jean Crawford and George Crawford seek damages totaling $150,000 from Howard Andrew Dunaway as a result of an automobile accident that occurred Oct. 14, 1974.

The suit charges that Dunaway operated his vehicle in a negligent manner when he drove from the parking lot of the War Drum Restaurant onto East Malone Avenue in Sikeston into the path of an auto driven by Mrs. Crawford.

The suit states that Mrs. Crawford received severe injuries to her chest, abdomen, pelvic region, whiplash to her neck and back and bruises on other areas of her body. Since receiving the injuries, the suit states that she has not been gainfully employed or able to do normal household duties, has been hospitalized on numerous occasions and in the future will need to be hospitalized and expend large sums of money.

In count one, Mrs. Crawford seeks damages of $100,000.

In count two, her husband states that as a result of the injuries to his wife, he has been deprived of the service of his wife to provide normal household duties and will be permanently deprived of the comfort, solace and services ordinarily provided by a wife in good health.

He further states it will be necessary for him to expend large sums of money for her future medical treatment and asks $50,000 in damages.
